REVIVAL CLOSES ALL SALOONS.

Illinois City's Gospel Record Broken by "Billy" Sunday, and He Feels Constrained to Refuse Money.

Jacksonville, Ill., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—"Billy" Sunday, the baseball evangelist, closed a five weeks' meeting here tonight. In two free will offerings today he received $1,374. The people started to take the third offering tonight when the evangelist entered the tabernacle and stopped the tellers. Finally the evening offering, at the suggestion of the evangelist, was given to a hospital.

Sunday has caused 2,542 professions of conversion, and 20,000 people heard him today. Every saloon in Jacksonville has closed its doors, and fifteen saloon proprietors are enjoying liberty through the sufferance of the judge of the Circuit court.

It has been the greatest gospel cleanup Jacksonville has ever seen.

ADLAI UNIONS' FOE, LABOR CHIEF SAYS

W. D. Ryan, National Secretary of Mine Workers, Sheds Light on Stevenson's Strike Record.

FOUGHT WORKERS YEARS

As President of McLean County Coal Company, Bloomington Man Resisted Till the Walkout Won.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—The statement made public recently by officers of the American Federation of Labor and the state federation relative to Adlai E. Stevenson's attitude toward organized labor was refuted tonight by William D. Ryan, national secretary-treasurer of the United Mineworkers of America.

Ryan was secretary-treasurer of the Illinois miners' organization at the time of the trouble with the Bloomington operators and is thoroughly familiar with the situation there.

Says Lennon Denounced Adlai.

In his statement, Ryan says:

"Lennon, who signed the statement indorsing the Stevenson candidacy for governor, was one of the union men who denounced Stevenson at that time. From the time the mine was sunk until 1890 it was operated as a notorious non-union plant, and in many instances men were refused work when it became known they belonged to the miners' organization.

"In 1897 about 20,000 miners were organized, but the Bloomington shaft was not included, owing to opposition offered by the officials. The first strike in the McLean County Coal company's mine occurred in 1897. In the spring of 1898 a conference of miners and operators was held in Springfield, at which an agreement was entered into and wages were greatly advanced for 30,000 miners of the state. The Bloomington company did not sign the scale and refused to pay wages equivalent to the amount fixed at the conference.

Attempt to Adjust Strike Failed.

"This condition of affairs existed for some time, and after the national convention in Pittsburg in 1899 it was decided to place two men at the Bloomington mine with instructions to remain until an organization was perfected. These men were William Topham of Westville and Link Downey of Danville. They finally were successful and a local union was launched.

"Again the company refused to treat with the miners, and in the spring of 1900 a strike was inaugurated. Daniel J. Keefe was at that time a member of the state board of equalization, and together we went to Bloomington in an attempt to adjust the strike. Negotiations failed.

"John Lennon, treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, also was in Bloomington, and the trio were enthusiastic in denouncing the attitude of the company in refusing to settle the strike and grant an increase in salary, as had been given to other miners of the state.

Says Stevenson Wouldn't Settle.

"Statements purported to have been issued by labor leaders say that Stevenson became president of the coal company in 1891, and if this is true, he was at the head of the organization when the strike was declared, as the walkout did not occur until the spring of 1899.

"The letter issued yesterday by President Walker of the United Mine Workers of Illinois, protesting against indorsements of Stevenson by organized bodies, has my hearty approval.

"I cannot see how credit can be given to Stevenson for being friendly to organized labor when he refused to settle the strike and allowed it to continue until the company was compelled to surrender to the demands of the miners."

PROTEST TO GOMPERS.

John H. Walker, president of the Coal Miners' Union of Illinois, has sent in a most vigorous protest against the clean bill of health given Adlai E. Stevenson by the officers of the Chicago Federation of Labor. It is in the form of a letter to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and reads:

"Oct. 31, 1908.

"Mr. Samuel Gompers, president American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C.:

"Inclosed is a statement given to the press signed by the officers of the Chicago Federation, Grant Hamilton, general organizer American Federation of Labor, and John B. Lennon, treasurer American Federation of Labor.

Fears Stevenson's Prejudice.

"Stevenson is a coal operator and we have some amendments to come before the next session of the legislature and they mean much to us, and will also mean as much in an opposite way to the coal operators of this state, and if Stevenson is elected governor I have absolutely no hope of being able to get any of the measures we expect to get through, signed by him while he holds that position.

"Stevenson recognized our union at the end of a long and bitter fight a year or more after every other coal operator almost in the state had signed up.

"I think our organization should have been given some consideration before an article of that kind was sent out by these men, and I enter a most bitter protest to that kind of work being done. J. H. WALKER."

DIES IN. FIGHT WITH FRIEND

William McCarthy Falls Lifeless, but Physicians Who Examined Body Said Heart Disease Killed Him.

In a fight with his friend, Charles Fitzgerald, in front of 112 East Thirty-ninth street last night, William McCarthy fell to the sidewalk and died almost instantly.

A patrol wagon took McCarthy's body to the Chicago Baptist hospital, where after an examination the physicians said they believed death was caused by heart disease. McCarthy was 25 years old. The police did not learn where he lived.

Fitzgerald was taken to the Stanton avenue police station and will be held pending the outcome of the coroner's inquest.

"Well, who's going to be elected?"

"O, I guess Taft's pretty sure to win. Everything seems to point that way. Don't you feel that way about it?"

"O, there's no doubt in my mind about it. I've felt it in my bones for the last month. But along in September things weren't looking very rosy for him, were they?"

"Not much. Everything seemed to be going Bryan's way then. He had the republicans on the defensive. Do you know, that man's a wonder. The way he can speak day and night for weeks at a stretch. I can't help but admire him in a good many ways."

"O, Bryan's not a bad fellow. I've met him a couple times and he has one of the most pleasing personalities that I've ever run across. You can't help but like him. He couldn't have kept his hold on the party the way he has without having some pretty strong points. The only trouble with William J. is that his judgment is weak."

"There's no doubt about that. He means all right, but he certainly does manage to jump around a good deal with his convictions. That's why people are afraid of him. If a president had nothing to do but talk and be pleasant he'd be an ideal one, but, great Scott, just imagine what would happen if he tried to put some of his theories in practice."

"His license scheme for instance."

"Sure. Why, if he had tried for ten years he couldn't have thought of a scheme more fantastic and impractical than that one. It sounds all right in a speech, but it couldn't possibly be worked out in practice. He'd have to have a government spy in every concern in the country, and the minute a factory produced more than 50 per cent of the business the spy would have to order the factory closed down or a part of it sold out. It would keep 500,000 government inspectors busy putting the brakes on commerce."

"That's not as funny as his bank deposit scheme."

"No, and the worst of all about his plans is that he can make them sound so nice in a speech. Theoretically, the bank deposit insurance idea is not a bad one, but who guarantees the deposits? The government? Nay, nay! The depositors—you and I and every man who has a little money in the bank. Suppose a crooked banker busts his bank—who pays all the losses? We do. It simply puts a premium on reckless banking. And I'll tell you what, about the time a dozen or so banks failed for a few millions the depositors of the conservative banks, who would have to fork over the losses, would rear up on their hind legs and roar louder than they ever roared before. They wouldn't like the idea of saving up money to pay for somebody else's foolishness."

"Nope. His theories are too impractical. He'd have the country sitting up nights wondering what to expect next. And another thing—just supposing, for instance, that he won out. Who would he appoint to the big offices? How many of his more prominent followers would you like to see running the government? Tammany would have to be rewarded in New York, Roger Sullivan in Illinois, Tom Taggart in Indiana, Mayor Dahlman, the cowboy mayor, in Nebraska, Ollie James in Kentucky, and a lot more of the men who are behind him. We don't know what men he would appoint, but he appointed Haskell to one of the most important offices in his campaign, and that seems to indicate that his judgment of men is about as weak as his judgment of policies."

"I think William J. had better stick to his newspaper and his lecture work. He's been nominated three times for president, and that's honor enough for any man. History will give him credit for being a greater man if he isn't elected than it will if he is elected, and, besides, good orators are scarce and we need them more in private life than in the White house."

"I don't think it likely that he'll reach the White house. He's sure to lose."

"Lose! Great Scott, he has nothing to lose in the approaching election. If we have continued good times he will be able to make his $50,000 a year lecturing. If we have hard times he will be making that much from his salary as president."

"My principal reason for voting for Taft is that I think he will carry out the Roosevelt policies. Teddy has been a great president, and I think he has done a world of good for the country. When we go to the polls to vote we will be asked to either indorse or repudiate the things he stands for. Taft means indorsement. Bryan means repudiation, and I, for one, intend to indorse them. I think perhaps Teddy has butted in a little too much in this campaign, but he naturally is eager to see his work continued along the lines he's laid out and he knows Taft will do it and that Bryan couldn't if he would. So I'm inclined to forgive him for a little natural enthusiasm in his zeal."

"How about the governorship fight?"

"O, I'm for Deneen and Oglesby rather than for Uncle Adlai and Elmer Perry."

"Who's Elmer?"

"He's the democratic candidate for lieutenant governor."

TAFT TO GIVE AID SOUGHT BY LABOR

Republican Candidate Promises Unions That He Will Urge Congress to Pass Their Bills.

TRUST VICTIMS FOR HIM.

Independent Oil Men Notify the Nominee They Are Fighting to Assure His Election.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—Generally fair weather for election day throughout the United States, with the possible exception of the region extending from the north Pacific coast over the northern Rocky mountain states, was predicted tonight by the weather bureau.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 1.—William H. Taft caused this statement to be issued here tonight as coming from him:

"It was brought to Mr. Taft's attention to day that a number of labor leaders who have no sympathy with Mr. Gompers in his attempt to commit the entire vote of labor to the democratic party were nevertheless in great concern lest the defeat of Mr. Bryan and Mr. Gompers which now seems to them certain would lead to reprisals on the part of the new administration under Mr. Taft and to a refusal on his part to continue the good work for labor which had been done by Mr. Roosevelt and at his instance by a republican congress. In the statement tonight Mr. Taft said:

"I have been honored by Mr. Roosevelt in the last four years by being called in to assist as an adviser in respect to all the executive and legislative measures projected in his administration in the interest of labor and I have had a deep sympathy with all that has been done. There are other measures in the interest of labor that ought to be adopted.

"The sixteen hour bill ought probably to be amended.

"The compensation for government employes act ought to be enlarged and liberalized with a view to making the government liable in the same way as a private employer for the injury of its workmen suffered while in its employ.

Promises Aid to Labor.

"It is the legitimate and approved practice of labor organizations to propose legislation of this kind to the executive for recommendation and to congress for action, and it will be a pleasant duty on my part, if I am elected, as I expect to be, to consider all such labor proposals and to urge upon congress those measures approved in the republican platform, as well as such others as commend themselves to my judgment and my desire to aid labor. The functions of the commissioner of labor may well be enlarged to make the bureau more useful to the cause of labor and all proposals in that direction will meet my hearty concurrence.

"The bitterness and injustice of the attacks made upon me by Mr. Bryan, by Mr. Gompers, by Mr. Fuller, will not in the slightest degree turn me from my consistent attitude toward labor of sympathetic interest in its behalf and earnest desire to aid it in every way that federal legislation may legitimately do it.

Refutes Charges of Fuller.

"The statement made by Mr. Fuller that I refused to give a hearing to laboring men in response to a cut in their wages of 10 per cent, made by the receivers of a railway company, grows out of his failure to note a full and complete decision on the subject, showing not only a full consideration but the fact that I called in another judge to help me, as well as the submission of a great deal of evidence and its careful consideration.

"The failure of the men having thirty days' notice of the proposed order to object to it until the day before the order was to go into effect led to a refusal to suspend the order, because there was not time for a hearing, but full opportunity to modify or revoke it was given upon five days' notice of the employés to the receiver, and this opportunity was improved by them and the hearing had.

"The statements of Mr. Bryan and Mr. Fuller on this subject include garbled sentences from one of the two opinions and give the impression that the court reached exactly the opposite conclusion from that which it in fact reached in respect to the propriety of a hearing in such cases.

Cites Reports on File.

"A reference to the decisions on the subject in the 62 federal reports 17 will confirm this statement and show the utter injustice of Mr. Fuller's attack.

"The case reported later of 62 federal reports 689 was a memorandum opinion, which should have preceded the opinion reported in the 62 federal reports 17 and the real decision reached was contained in the latter.

"This may have misled Mr. Fuller and Mr. Bryan, but it did not justify the use of garbled extracts from the earlier opinion."

Independent Oil Men for Taft.

The following telegram received today by Mr. Taft was made public by him:

"Every absolutely independent oil man I have seen interested in the production, manufacture, and sale of petroleum and its products, whether democrat or republican, and I, likewise interested, notwithstanding John D. Rockefeller's statement, will vote for you and hope for your election by an overwhelming majority.

"I submit that if we, fighting the greatest of trusts, wish you elected, labor should not be fooled by Bryan or the democratic party, but vote for you and the restoration of confidence.

"CHARLES RUSSELL BURKE,
116 Broad street, New York."

Taft Rests and Goes to Church.

Mr. Taft rested from his labors today. He attended morning church service at the First Presbyterian church with Ansley Wilcox, a long time personal friend, at whose home here President Roosevelt took the oath of office after the death of President McKinley; went to the Wilcox home for luncheon, and later devoted some time to that portion of his correspondence which could not be delayed, and retired early in his suite of rooms at the Iroquois hotel.

The last day of the campaign will be devoted by the candidate to making speeches at Dunkirk, N. Y.; Ashtabula, Cleveland, and Youngstown, O., after which he will proceed during the night to Cincinnati, where he will arrive at 8 o'clock election morning.

Traveled for 15,000 Miles.

BOWS TO WRATH OF GERMANS

Foreign Secretary Quits as Result of Interview Muss.

KAISER STANDS BY BUELOW.

Chancellor in for Warm Time, However, with Reichstag.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—As a result of the storm of public anger and humiliation growing out of the kaiser's recent interview with an unknown Englishman, it is understood tonight that Herr von Schoen, secretary for foreign affairs, has resigned.

It was announced that Herr von Schoen had been taken suddenly ill and was likely to be incapacitated indefinitely from performing his official work. This is interpreted as an indication that he has been selected to fill the rôle of a Jonah.

The crisis has been the topic of conversation in every circle today and the bitterest opinions have been uttered almost everywhere. Apparently for the purpose of emphasizing the imperial determination not to throw Von Bülow over, the crown prince visited him this afternoon, staying a long time, and it is assumed the kaiser intends to do his utmost to prevent the storm from centreating on the chancellor.

Kaiser Stands By Buelow.

It is predicted that Von Bülow will have the hottest time of his public experience when the reichstag meets on Wednesday. There are even suggestions that the reichstag will insist on his resignation, enforcing the demand by refusing to vote his salary.

Consideration of the official explanation of the publication of the interview resulted in diverting much of the popular animosity from the kaiser to the ministers.

Loyalists Wholly Forgive Emperor.

Indeed, in ultra loyalist quarters the emperor is wholly forgiven on the ground that he acted with scrupulous regard to the constitution in submitting the interview to the chancellor. Prince von Bülow and his subordinates are assailed in most violent language for allowing the chaotic disorganization in the highest government departments.

Nobody seems hitherto to have objected to the fact that throughout the periods of the revolution in Turkey and Austria's seizure of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the kaiser, Chancellor von Bülow, and Foreign Secretary Schoen were not only absent from Berlin, but were at widely divergent points.

Now, however, when the interview has thrilled Europe, it is asked indignantly how it is to be expected that urgent business of a great empire is to be efficiently transacted if the emperor, chancellor, and foreign secretary are concurrently absent from the capital on holidays as, indeed, they were, when the interview was submitted to official censorship.

Editorial Bitter on Incident.

There is no aspect of the incident that escapes denunciation. Many of the editorials suggest that they were written by men, who at the time, were tearing their hair in paroxysms of disgust. The nation, in short, feels that it has made itself foolish in the eyes of the world, and the bitterness is immensely intensified by the fact that all has arisen from an impulsive attempt to placate a hated neighbor, who has met the effort with a cold snub.

Far and wide throughout the empire the newspapers of all parties discuss with varying degrees of mockery, amusement, and regret the government's explanation of how what purported to be enormously important utterances of the emperor, affecting three great powers, passed through the hands of the chancellor and a long line of foreign office officials without seemingly having been considered by any of them or read by most of those responsible for the delicate foreign relations.

Press Urges Popular Ministry.

The radical, liberal, and socialist journals utilize the event to urge upon the country a demand for a ministry responsible to parliament and the people, instead of the continuance of ministerial responsibility to the crown alone.

In addition to the semi-official accounts already published, it is learned that the emperor handed the manuscript of the interview which appeared in the London Daily Telegraph, and the authorship of which is still undisclosed, to Baron von Jenisch, who was attached to his entourage while the emperor was absent from the capital a short time ago, as the representative of the foreign office, with the direction to send it to Prince von Bülow.

Rounds Made by Manuscript.

The chancellor described the note from Von Jenisch, which accompanied the manuscript, as referring to the inclosure as an article, not as an interview, so that the chancellor did not consider it necessary to give it his personal attention. The manuscript consisted of a number of small, flimsy like sheets, the handwriting being difficult to decipher, and the chancellor referred it to Herr von Mueller, the minister at The Hague, who was acting as the chancellor's private secretary.

The latter in his turn, and without examining the document, sent it to the foreign office, where, in the absence of Herr von Schoen, it was read by subordinate officials, who did not attach importance to its contents, and returned through the proper channels without further examination until transmitted by one of the imperial secretaries to England.

There, as the Tagliche Rundschau, one of the newspapers that are read in court, aristocratic and military circles, described it, "It emerged gayly into the world, infuriating the French, Russians, Dutch, and Japanese, chilling the British, exciting bitterness and nervous irritation on the part of our own people, and undermining our neighbors' belief in our reliability."

Irony by London Papers.

LONDON, Nov. 2, 3 a. m.—The London morning papers comment ironically upon what they describe as "ingenious semi-official explanations" from Berlin concerning the emperor's published interview.

The papers consider that the effect of the explanations will be greatly to increase distrust of the German foreign office and its methods and probably lead to still greater ill feeling between Great Britain and Germany.

The Daily Telegraph gives no further explanation of the affair, which its Berlin correspondent declares involves Germany in the gravest domestic crisis she has experienced since the dismissal of Bismarck.

Sidney Whitman, the English publicist, who, it has been believed in certain quarters, was the author of the article, denies any connection with it.

HALLOWEEN JOY BRINGS DEATH.

George Newman, Six Years Old, Falls Into Bonfire and Suffers Fatal Injuries.

George Newman, 6 years old, died yesterday at St. Elizabeth's hospital as the result of a halloween celebration. The boy, with several companions, was playing near a bonfire in front of his home, 732 North Ashland avenue. In dancing around it he stumbled and fell into the fire. His clothing was almost entirely burned from his body before his father, who heard his screams, could drag him out.

ABANDON AUTO; STEAL MATE

Second Victim of Thieves Is a Friend of the First.

RETURNS CAR; SEEKS OWN.

William R. Rose Loses His Machine on Michigan Avenue.

"To steal an automobile and keep it is not a good kind of halloween joke."

This was the expressed opinion last night of William R. Rose, 5617 Washington avenue. Mr. Rose's machine was taken from in front of the Auditorium Annex between midnight and 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

That another auto was left in its stead did not help the matter, for that also was a stolen machine, which had been abandoned by the thief. It was the same make of car as the one owned by Mr. Rose, and had been stolen early in the evening from Henry Strauss, 4200 Drexel boulevard.

Mr. Rose was instrumental in recovering Mr. Strauss' machine, but his own automobile has not yet been found.

"Substitute" Would Not Work.

When Mr. Rose came out of the Annex early Sunday morning he found an automobile standing where he had left his machine on entering the hotel. Not knowing that it was not his own car, he took his seat in front and tried to start the machine. It refused to go. He discovered that it was "dead"—the electricity having been entirely consumed.

Mr. Rose thought this strange, as there was plenty of power in the batteries when he left the machine in front of the hotel.

In looking over the car he discovered that the license tag was not his. On consulting an automobile directory, he found that the machine belonged to Mr. Strauss. Both keep their machines at the same garage and Mr. Rose was of the opinion that Mr. Strauss had played a halloween joke on him.

Phone Talk Reveals Double Steal.

He telephoned Mr. Strauss, asking where he could find his own machine, and tried to be jocular over the matter.

"I don't know where your automobile is," said Mr. Strauss. "Do you know where mine is? Mine was stolen at 8 o'clock last evening from in front of 4535 Ellis avenue."

Explanations followed over the telephone and Mr. Strauss told his friend Rose to refill the batteries and drive the machine to the garage. This he was glad to do, inasmuch as his own automobile was not in sight.

Up to a late hour last night Mr. Rose had heard nothing of the stolen car.

Chauffeur Bridegroom Prisoner.

Halloween sprites dealt most unkindly with one poor bridegroom Saturday night. He was married at 6 o'clock in the evening, only to be spirited away from his bride at midnight by rough goblins in automobiles and imprisoned until almost noon yesterday.

The victim was A. E. Wilcox, a chauffeur for the Cosy Livery company. His partner in misery, just taken for a partner for life, was Miss M. E. Nebring until six hours before the tragic separation. The Halloween goblins were four husky chauffeurs of the Cosy Livery company—Jack Kelly, Robert Frei, Harry Hudson, and William Havens. They attended the wedding, and when they prepared to leave at midnight, Wilcox attended them to the door. There they kidnaped him and hurried him to the stockroom of the garage, where he was kept under lock and key until about noon yesterday.

He was released just in time to meet his weeping bride and leave on a honeymoon in the east. The kidnaping occurred at the home of the bride, 909 Forty-fifth street.

face to face has resulted in the travel of the "Taft special" for 15,000 miles. Across the Dakotas, Tennessee, from Colorado to Connecticut, through twenty-three states, the candidate has preached his cause and the republican doctrine. His journeys have been almost unbroken; he has traveled day and night. But tonight the "Taft smile" was as broad and infectious as ever.

"I feel a little weary, but in as good physical condition as ever in my life," is the diagnosis of himself made by the candidate tonight.

That the strain has been great and the work wearisome there is ample evidence. Mr. Taft has had a special train throughout. It has been in charge of Col. Daniel Ransdell, sergeant-at-arms of the United States senate, whose good nature, combined with the consenting abilities of Mr. Taft, has been responsible for the victory of many a local committee which demanded an extra stop and an extra speech from the candidate. Col. Ransdell has ridden in the carriage with Mr. Taft and sat on the platform at every meeting.

Mr. Cornelius, the assistant sergeant-at-arms of the senate, has aided the colonel throughout. J. T. Williams Jr. represented Chairman Hitchcock and the national committee. Wherever Mr. Taft went and whatever he said was made available to the press through Gus J. Karger, his publicity agent.

Chicago Officers on Trip.

But the energy which political enthusiasm and curiosity puts into the average American was one of the forces of the campaign which had to receive serious consideration, and it was "Jim" Markham, now and for many years secretary of the chief of police of Chicago, who knew this fact. Markham's friendship for Mr. Taft had developed from personal acquaintance years before, and he took his annual leave to make the first trip just to show what a trained man could do in getting through crowds.

While the smile that "Big Jim" started out with in September has become more straight and severe, he maintains with great pride that his recipe for getting a candidate through a packed crowd has proved more effectual than any argument in the campaign.

"Just step on their corns and smile and the way opens quite far enough for even Mr. Taft to pass through," is his explanation.

Joseph Barris of the Chicago detective force has kept a weather eye on the flank of the Taft party in these movements, while "Little Mich," as he has been affectionately dubbed for the more dignified title of Mr. Wendall Mischler, assistant secretary, has clung close to the coat tails of the candidate and has "taken" every word he has uttered in shorthand and occupied himself between stations in putting the speeches on the typewriter for publication.

Doctor Keeps His Throat Working.

Dr. J. J. Richardson of Washington, D. C., throat specialist, has heard every speech Mr. Taft has made throughout the campaign and between times he has said hard things to the candidate, given constant and sometimes harsh treatment, but points with pride to the fact that Mr. Taft has kept on talking.

Crawford Kennedy of Nebraska has distributed a million photographs and a million and a half Taft buttons from the train.

GOMPERS' AIDS HOLD TRUE.

Labor Leader in Impassioned Speech Appeals for Support for Democrat.

New York, Nov. 1.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, made his final appeal to organized labor tonight to support the candidacy of William J. Bryan. In an address extending over two hours Mr. Gompers dealt in detail with the labor issues of the campaign, and in his peroration asked with all the feeling he could put into words that the support of labor be given to Mr. Bryan next Tuesday.

Grand Central palace, where the meeting was held, was crowded and at the conclusion of Mr. Gompers' speech there was applause and cheering that lasted until the speaker had left the platform.

In the course of his address Mr. Gompers declared that William H. Taft, in a speech at Buffalo last Friday night, had endeavored to misrepresent the cause of labor and to deceive laboring men into the belief that prominent labor leaders were "falling away from Mr. Gompers in his effort to pledge the labor vote to the democratic party"—this quoted phrase being included in a paragraph from Mr. Taft's Buffalo speech, which Mr. Gompers read.

After reading this paragraph Mr. Gompers said:

"Then Mr. Taft mentioned the names of John Mitchell, James Duncan, Max Morris, and Daniel J. Keefe as men who were 'falling away from Mr. Gompers.'

"Yesterday I sent telegrams to John Mitchell and to James Duncan. I did not send telegrams to Morris or Keefe. I will now read you the answers:

"'Quincy, Mass., Oct. 31.—I have not changed in thought, word, or deed since our Washington executive meeting when our circular was drawn up and approved by the whole council. Any statement by any party stating differently is without authority from me, nor do I expect to change my views. You are at liberty to use this in any way you see fit.

"'JAMES DUNCAN.'

"The next telegram is dated Chicago, Oct. 31, and reads:

"'Your telegram giving what purports to be an extract from a speech made by Taft at Buffalo last night is at hand. His statement, so far as relates to me, conveys a wrong impression. I am in full sympathy and accord with the policy of the American Federation of Labor as promulgated and outlined by the executive council.

"'JOHN MITCHELL.'"

Mr. Gompers read a telegram of similar purport from Max Morris of Denver, Colo.

Mr. Gompers read two other telegrams, one from the branch of the American Federation of Labor at Louisville, Ky., and the other from the branch at Fort Wayne, Ind. Both telegrams informed Mr. Gompers that the branches had indorsed Mr. Gompers' policy.

Mr. Gompers was in such great earnestness that he implored the enthusiastic audience not to interrupt him with applause, saying:

"I want to appeal to your conscience and your judgment, not to your enthusiasm. The appeal I make tonight I hope will not pass away like an ordinary appeal. I want you to remember what I say not until next Tuesday but until justice has been secured for labor."

Mr. Gompers attacked Taft for what he termed his "unfair and terribly injurious labor injunctions," detailed the campaign that had been conducted to secure recognition at the republican and democratic national conventions, endeavored to show that the democratic convention had dealt more fairly than the republicans with the appeal of labor, and ended with a rousing peroration.

BOOKER WASHINGTON FOR TAFT

Colored Educator Issues Statement Saying That Negroes Will Support Republican Candidate.

Columbus, O., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—In a letter received today by Arthur I. Vorys, chief of staff to Mr. Taft, Dr. Booker T. Washington says:

"I would state that Mr. Taft is considered level headed and safe on all matters that relate to the elevation and progress of the negro race. He has had wide experience in dealing with dark skinned races outside of America.

"His interest in the race is not new or spasmodic, but has extended over a number of years and has had to do with a number of varied interests.

"I am convinced that the bulk of colored voters have decided to cast their ballot for him for president."

FIGHT IN MONTANA IS CLOSE.

Republicans and Democrats Hustling for Each Single Vote, Fearing It May Turn the Scale.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 1.—That a single vote might decide the election of the governor and presidential electors is the belief expressed by conservative people throughout the state.

Republicans and democrats are claiming small majorities. Every man who is registered will be taken to the polls if he can be found.

On the state ticket popularity of the individual candidates will cut a big figure.

Thomas D. Long, democratic candidate for congress, is conceded to be practically certain of election.

FIVE BIG BANKS IN ONE VILLAGE.

Mangum, Okla., Gives Example of Workings of Deposit Guaranty Law.

COURTS SUSTAIN PLAN.

Conscientious Efforts of Commissioner to Limit Institutions Meet Failure.

Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—An interesting side light on what is going on in Oklahoma this year under the encouragement of the new law, which makes all bank deposits a joint liability, is afforded by the following news note from one of the papers of Mangum, this state:

A BOOM IN BANKS.

TWO NEW STATE BANKS HAVE BEEN CHARTERED FOR CITY OF MANGUM.

WILL BE FIVE BANKS IN TOWN.

"First State Bank" and "Farmers' State Bank" Are the Names of New Financial Institutions.

"Mangum now has three national banks and there is a strong probability that she will soon have two state banks as well. This sudden increase in the number of Mangum's financial institutions came about in this way: C. F. Elerick of Oklahoma City is at the head of a syndicate that on July 1 of this year opened the First State bank of Oklahoma City with a capital of $61,000, and has since been establishing smaller banks at good towns in different parts of the state.

"Mr. Elerick came to Mangum on Sept. 8 and remained just between day trains—about an hour that day—but just a drive around the courthouse square was enough to convince him that Mangum could well support another bank. He went back home, and a day or two later a charter was issued by the secretary of state for the First State bank of Mangum, capital stock $25,000.

Brings In New Cashier.

"Mr. Elerick arrived in Mangum again on Thursday of last week and was accompanied by E. B. Sutton of Oklahoma City, who is to be cashier of the bank. They have bought the lease on the room in the Kellum building held by the Simpson Hardware company and will open the new bank as soon as the room can be fitted up, the vault built, etc.

"It happened that at the same time that Mr. Elerick and his associates were contemplating opening a state bank in Mangum a number of Mangum's citizens decided that a state bank here would be a paying institution. A few of the leading business men of the town were let in on the enterprise, the $25,000 stock was subscribed, and charter sent for.

"This latter company is composed wholly of local business men and farmers, and is a strong home institution. The latter organization has secured its charter and is now looking into the matter of a location.

"The new banks will both be under the guaranty deposit law.

"With five banks, all anxious to do business, there ought to be plenty of money afloat in Mangum and vicinity this fall and winter."

This town of Mangum had a population of 2,670 by the last census. It already has three national banks, one of $50,000 capital, one of $30,000, and one of $25,000. This would seem to be banks enough to supply the needs of a town of that size and afford all the competition necessary. Of course banks do not create more money in a community, notwithstanding this reporter's sage comments that with five banks money should be plenty in Mangum this fall and winter.

The service of banks to a community is in gathering up its money, safe keeping it, and making it more available for loans. When the number of banks in a town is needlessly multiplied, there is a useless expenditure for rent, salaries, etc., which is plain economic waste, to say nothing of the losses which always result from excessive and bitter competition.

Banks Under New Law.

One of the new state banks, according to this report, is to be owned locally, as is the usual custom, and no comment upon this is called for except that it is apparently not required by the business of the community, and its organization was doubtless prompted of the guaranty law.

The other case, that of the stranger who is starting a string of banks in the state, and who comes into town for the first time and after driving around the public square, and remaining in town about an hour between trains, determines to start a bank, is suggestive of the conditions developed by the new law. It destroys individuality in the banking business. It eliminates character and standing as a factor in attracting business. That explains why a man ventures to start a bank in a town already fully supplied with well established institutions, and that without interesting any local people to help draw business. As Mr. J. W. McNeal, president of the National Bank of Commerce, in Guthrie, says:

"A man may bet all his money on the races, may gamble on the board of trade, may fight joint whisky, may lead a licentious life, and go out and get deposits on the credit of honest and careful bankers, by offering a little higher inducements for deposits than the latter dare to."

The conservative banker is under what seems to be an almost impossible handicap, for he has lost the legitimate reward to which his conservatism is entitled.

Answer of Commissioner Smock.

It is doubtful if anything is better calculated to open up to the mind of the thinking man a clearer view of the Oklahoma banking situation and the inability of the well intending officials, who are to be credited with a sincere desire to make the scheme a success, to control the passion for starting mushroom banks—under the "joint liability" provision of the guaranty statute—than is the following legal answer made by Bank Commissioner H. H. Smock in the mandamus proceedings brought to compel him to authorize the Farmers' Union State bank.

Here is that portion of his answer which bears upon the point in question:

"That since the request to defendant by plaintiff for a certificate showing that the plaintiff has been duly organized and is authorized to transact a general banking business, defendant has caused said town of Prague and its population and general business conditions to be examined with the view of ascertaining whether such certificate should be issued, and has also caused examination to be made concerning the fitness of the officers and directors of said proposed bank to open up a new bank and properly conduct the business of banking, and has ascertained and found that the proposed president and cashier of said proposed bank have never had any previous banking experience in an executive capacity; neither has any other officer or stockholder had any such experience, and that because of such inexperience and unfitness of such officers and directors said persons should not be approved by him as proper persons to incorporate a banking corporation, and same were disapproved by him.

Too Small for New Bank.

"That the town of Prague is located in Lincoln county, Okla., and has less than 1,000 population as shown by the federal special census for the year 1907; that there are no apparent indications that the population of said town will materially increase, or that the business of said town will increase to any appreciable extent; that the country surrounding Prague is an agricultural community, and there are no mining, manufacturing, or other industrial pursuits in and around said town, and the opportunity for conducting an extensive banking business at said town is limited; that there are already three banks in said town, two of $25,000 capital each and one of $10,000 capital, with aggregate deposit of approximately $100,000, as shown by their last official statements. That said three banks are safely and properly equipped for meeting all demands of the people of said town of Prague and vicinity and afford said people ample banking facilities.

"That the official action taken by defendant in refusing to issue the certificate requested by plaintiff and in disapproving the incorporators thereof was taken and had under and by virtue of the constitution and laws of the state of Oklahoma, which vest in defendant sufficient power and authority to regulate and control state banks with the view that depositors and stockholders might be protected.

"H. H. SMOCK."

Permit Must Be Issued.

The legal phraseology employed in this document gives to it a precision, definiteness, and seriousness not to be had from any informal or offhand statement. And it should not be forgotten that the ruling on the plea of the bank commissioner was an adverse one and that it was held by the court that it was not within his discretion to deny the application of this bank so long as it had complied with the law in the steps of its preliminary organization.

This pleading indicates a sincere desire on the part of the bank commissioner to put a restraining hand upon the wild hopes of the bank starvers in his state—and by the same token the ruling of the court upon his answer as effectually demonstrates his powerlessness to prevent any man, no matter what his character or reputation, from opening a banking institution and receiving savings of trusting depositors, no matter how vigilant or conscientious a bank commissioner and his assistants may be. And this plea would indicate that Commissioner Smock is both vigilant and conscientious.

He might as well be in a straitjacket so far as his ability to restrain, by a finger's weight, the organization and opening of banks by those whom he believes to be inexperienced, incompetent, or even dishonest and venal. He must give his official sanction to every bank which applies to him for authority to do business and which can show that it has complied with the technical requirements prescribed in the statute.

Law's Success Depends on Officers.

From the start the friends of the guaranty law have been practically of one voice in the admission that the success of the measure must in a large degree depend upon the integrity of the superintendence exercised by the banking authorities of the state, and that the existence of the "joint liability" provision in the law must naturally call for and necessitate a closer, firmer, and more efficient supervision of banks than was formerly required, and that the banking commissioner would be called upon to exercise a high order of discernment, judgment, and firmness.

Now it appears that in the most essential matter of all—that of saying who shall be permitted to appeal to the people and ask to be trusted with their savings—he is legally debarred from the exercise of judgment, of discretion, or any supervision whatever beyond the mere formalities.

Severe Drain on Circulation.

Still another feature of the situation under a guaranty of deposit law, which apparently has been generally overlooked, is pointed out in a letter from Mr. O. D. Cotton. In substance Mr. Cotton's valuable point is this: That the withdrawal from circulation and use of a fund sufficient to serve as a guaranty would, in itself, seriously affect financial conditions. The banks which closed their doors in New York City during the recent panic had liabilities, in round numbers, of $100,000,000. The advocates of guaranty of deposits assume in all their arguments that the guaranty fund shall be immediately available for the payment of depositors in banks forced to suspend payment.

This means, in plain words, that the fund must be in cash, and it follows that if it is in cash, and not deposited in the banks themselves, it would be withdrawn from circulation. No great financial disarmament is required to forecast what would be the effect, in a time of stringency, sufficient to cause a run on banks, of the withdrawal of $100,000,000 from circulation.

On the other hand, if this guaranty fund were in any other form than immediately available cash it would not be, as the advocates of the guaranty system claim, an effective stop to banks and a sure cure for the public loss of confidence which causes them.

As a matter of fact, the brief history of guaranty banking in Oklahoma has demonstrated that it is possible for a bank to close its doors, even under the beneficent operation of the guaranty act.

HUGHES SAYS VICTORY'S SURE.

New York Governor Adds Republican Work Must Be Carried Through Till the Polls Close.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Gov. Hughes, when asked tonight for an expression of opinion regarding the outcome of the election in New York state, said:

"I am confident that we shall win. There is no mistaking the intense interest that is felt. Thousands have been working earnestly and all signs point to victory. Our efforts must not be relaxed, and if all those who have shown their interest and enthusiasm in the campaign will make sure to vote there can be no question of the result."

Gov. Hughes was in good spirits and showed hardly a trace of the strenuous campaign which he has been through.

Dr. Hillis for Closed Sunday.

New York, Nov. 1.—[Special.]—The Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor the Plymouth Congregational church of Brooklyn, came out for Hughes today in an address on "Our Country" before a crowd of 1,000 in the Bedford Auditorium of Brooklyn. Dr. Hillis said he was speaking from a nonpartisan standpoint.

"Webster says," quoted Dr. Hillis, "if the American Sunday is given up, the republic will come to an end within 100 years. Where then does this man stand, with his talk of personal liberty, to cloak the open racetrack and the open saloon?

"I observe that whenever a man invests in a kit of burglar tools he wants personal liberty until he gets his money back. Similarly a man in the racetrack business wants us to wait until he breaks even with his investment. Four times as many boys used to be arrested for theft, burglary, forgery, and like crimes when the racetracks were running than now that they are closed. People have passed laws; Gov. Hughes has sworn to enforce those laws, and he has done his best to do it. Are you going to turn him down and punish him for what he had to swear to almighty God to do?

Dr. Parkhurst Attacks Teachers.

The Rev. Charles W. H. Parkhurst at the Madison Square Presbyterian church today devoted his sermon to advocating the reelection of Gov. Hughes and to a denunciation of those who are opposing him. Dr. Parkhurst attacked the public school teachers for working against Gov. Hughes because he vetoed the salary bill.

"But perhaps the most astonishing instance of personal grievance," he said, "is that of 13,000 women teachers who entered into an unholy conspiracy with gamblers to defeat as governor the man who had just succeeded in crowding the gamblers into compulsory respect for that article of the state constitution that positively prohibits gambling.

"And they are doing it for the purpose of punishing the governor for vetoing a bill which, had it been indorsed by him, would have added some dollars to their salary. They make no account of the legal grounds upon which the veto was based. They are simply in pursuit of the shekels.

"And these are the women into whose hands and sensitive guardianship we commit our boys and girls. It is gratifying to know that the board of education has taken this ebullition of frantic feminine acrimony vigorously in hand."

Chanler Thinks He'll Win.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Lieut. Gov. Chanler announced tonight his belief that New York state would return majorities for both Bryan and himself.

"I do not propose to claim everything in sight," he said, "but I do say that democracy will make gains in all and marked gains in nineteen of the up-state counties. At least seven of these will show a democratic majority.

"These majorities added to the majority which Greater New York will give, assure New York state to the national and state tickets by safe figures."

DIDN'T TRY TO BUY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Stone Says Standard Never Approached Him on Subsidizing Errand.

ACCUSED MEN EXPLAIN.

Senator Curtis Declares He Fought Oil Trust; Campbell Talks Likewise.

New York, Nov. 1.—[Special.]—Melville E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, is deeply interested in Joseph C. Sibley's letter of March 7, 1905, written to John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil company, and made public by W. R. Hearst yesterday.

This calm proposition to break into the news columns of every newspaper of importance in the country and fool the public with doctored news favorable to the Standard Oil company never amounted to anything, according to Mr. Stone.

"If the Standard Oil company ever attempted to get control of the Associated Press," Mr. Stone said, "I never heard of it. I certainly would know of it were such an attempt made.

"Doctoring" Would Be Caught at Once.

"Neither do I believe the company ever tried to form a news association of its own. If it had such an association it would have lasted about two minutes. Experience has shown that it is utterly impossible to run a successful newspaper or news service where the real purpose is to protect some interest.

"I suppose they thought the Associated Press could be bought. If they did they made a big blunder. Such an idea also shows how little they know about the workings of the Associated Press. I would be as powerless as anybody to disseminate doctored news. They forget that everything the Associated Press sends out is scrutinised by hundreds of telegraph editors all over the country and if news that is not a true or faithful report of what happened were sent out it would at once be discovered by scores of newspapers."

Curtis Says He Fought Standard.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 1.—In regard to the letter from J. C. Sibley to John D. Archbold, intimating that the two present Kansas senators would use their influence in behalf of the Standard Oil company, read by William R. Hearst in New York last night, United States Senator Charles Curtis tonight gave out the following statement:

"I am certain Mr. Sibley did not talk with me at any time about the matter he mentioned. If he did it did not have any effect, for my record will show that I offered considerable time and what influence I may have had against the thing Mr. Sibley represented.

"When Mr. Garfield was in Kansas looking for evidence against the Standard Oil company I met him and gave him such information as I could. I furnished him with the names of people who could aid him in his work.

"At that time I was a director in the Stewart Oil company of Humboldt, which was unfriendly to the Standard. This company suffered as much as any company in Kansas at the hands of the Standard and was finally forced out of business. My record will show that I have never been conected directly or indirectly with the Standard Oil company."

Campbell Says He Began Oil Quiz.

Pittsburg, Kas., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—Congressman P. J. Campbell resents the assertion made by Joseph C. Sibley in the latter's letter to J. D. Archbold that he [Campbell] was "harmless." In support of his contention that he was at least of some harm to the Standard Oil company, Mr. Campbell says his resolution in congress in February, 1905, was what started the government investigation of the oil trust.

Got Cash, but Not to Color News.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—W. A. Magee, who was last night accused by William R. Hearst of having received $1,250 from John D. Archbold in 1899 while publisher of the Pittsburg Times, tonight admitted he did receive the money, but that it was not for any newspaper influence. Mr. Magee says:

"I remember that I got the money Hearst mentions. I had done some work for some person connected with the Standard Oil company and this was my pay. There was never any intimation that any one knew I was connected with a newspaper, as the work required and done was altogether outside of that line."

$3,000 Was to Help Build South.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—Richard H. Edmonds, president of the Manufacturers' Record company, said tonight regarding the Hearst charges:

"For years the Record has been a bureau for the distribution of pamphlets and printed matter of interest to the south, and the general progress of that section of the country. The Record has enlisted the cooperation of those who are largely interested in bringing about the broadest development of the south. Henry M. Flagler of Florida and Henry H. Rogers have invested many millions in railroads and other developments in the south. They have cooperated in the distribution of literature in the interest of the south.

"As to the $3,000 subscription, I consider the above an explanation of what the Record has received from the Standard Oil company."

CAPITAL VOTERS GO HOME.

Government Officials and Employes Leave for Respective States for Election Day.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—Such an exodus of voters from the national capital to their homes in various states has not been known in any political campaign since 1896 as has been taking place in the last four or five days.

A careful canvass of the several executive departments showed up to noon yesterday that approximately 3,700 voters had already gone to their homes, and many hundreds more left Washington last night and today. It is estimated that 1,500 more will leave for nearby states tonight and tomorrow, as hundreds of bureau and division chiefs and clerks reside in Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and New York.

President Roosevelt, Secretary Loeb, and several White house attachés who hold voting residences at Oyster Bay or other places in New York will leave Washington tomorrow night. All members of the cabinet now are in their respective states except Secretaries Wright and Metcalf. The former failed to register in Tennessee and the latter is confined to his residence by a serious illness.

Injured Section Hand Dies.

Rocco Malone, who was run over by an Illinois Central railroad train at Van Buren street Saturday morning, died yesterday at his home, 276 West Twelfth street. He was a section hand, employed on the railroad, and was 40 years old.

PRELATE STANDS BY CANNON

Bishop Hamilton Disapproves Colleagues' Censure of Speaker.

SEEKS TO OBTAIN FACTS.

Writes His Views to the Chicago Organ of Methodist Church.

The bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church are not of one mind respecting the case of Speaker Cannon. A number of them some time ago declared their disapproval of his attitude during the last congress on the question of legislation applicable to the liquor question as it touched prohibition states.

Last week the board of bishops was in session in Indianapolis. Bishop Hamilton of Boston, formerly located in San Francisco, prepared a letter, while in Indianapolis, to the Northwestern Christian Advocate, in which he distinctly declined to oppose Mr. Cannon's reelection, and expressed his confidence in the speaker's uprightness and correctness on the liquor question.

It is known, too, that Bishop Hamilton does not stand among the bishops alone in his views on Mr. Cannon. More than one of his colleagues is said to have urged him to write the letter dissenting from the criticisms of the speaker.

Bishop Hamilton Explains.

The Christian Advocate on Wednesday, it is expected, will print the Hamilton letter. In order that his views might be known before election day the bishop gave to THE TRIBUNE a copy of his letter, which follows:

"To the Editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate: I have been asked, as several of the bishops have been, for the reason why I did not join some of my colleagues in protesting against the reelection of the Hon. Joseph G. Cannon to the house of representatives.

"No one will question my integrity either as to opinion of the temperance movement or my personal relations to intoxicating liquors.

"I have resided for eight years in San Francisco and have not had the same opportunity to be familiar with the intricate political understandings among the politicians in the eastern and middle states.

"I did know that certain members of the committee of the general conference which visited the speaker of the house of representatives in Washington in May felt that they had been cavalierly treated or more humorously entertained than comported with the serious mission upon which they had been sent, and they felt that the denomination representing fully one-fifth of the population of the entire nation deserved more respectful consideration.

Willing to Rebuke Trifling.

"I was quite as willing to rebuke trifling in high places when the evil in question was one that had cost the world, as Mr. Gladstone asserted, greater suffering and loss than had been incurred by war, pestilence, and famine combined.

"And much as I respected the chief officers of the government, I was as ready to help defeat any one of them who by 'hint, squint, or silent conspiracy,' as Mr. Taft has said, had intimated that he preferred the support of the saloon to that of the churches. We have a notorious example of one such politician who was once ambitious to be the candidate for the presidency, but who is now completely stranded.

"I knew Mr. Cannon personally, and could not believe that he would lend himself, or the influence of his high position, to oppose any honest endeavor to secure a fair expression of the will of the people on the one subject so much in the mind of the whole country.

Set Right by Speaker Cannon.

"I therefore wrote Mr. Cannon a straightforward interrogatory letter, asking him if he had 'directly or indirectly' sought to hinder legislation in the committee on judiciary or in congress in the matter of the federal government in its relation to the traffic in intoxicating liquors in the prohibitory states.

"He replied so candidly that he had not opposed the legislation and had not intended to treat the general conference committee disrespectfully that I was bound to accept his statement. And when his declaration was confirmed promptly by Mr. Littlefield himself in reply to the letter I addressed him on the same subject, I felt justified in declining to oppose Mr. Cannon's reelection.

"Respectfully and faithfully,

"JOHN W. HAMILTON."

MORMONISM THE FIGHT IN UTAH

Priests of Church Advise Congregations to Concentrate Vote Against American Party.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 1.—The utterances of the Mormon priesthood at the various ward meeting houses today were closely analyzed by the politicians and in at least three instances those high in ecclesiastical authority advised congregations to vote the republican ticket.

The American, or anti-Mormon, party is strong in Salt Lake county, and the members of the dominant church are anxious to concentrate their votes in such a manner as to retain control of the county government. This was generally given by the speakers as a reason for their political advice.

The threat of the American party, if victorious in the county of Salt Lake, to prosecute the heads of the churches who live here and are sustaining polygamous relations, has awakened so much feeling that the national campaign is largely obscured.

OFF FOR KANSAS HOPEFUL

Democratic Leaders Charge That Conspiracy Delayed Train on Saturday.

Prophesying that he would be elected, but unwilling to designate the states he expects to carry, William Jennings Bryan left Chicago last night. Today he will speak in northern Kansas and tonight he will close his campaign with an address in the city of his residence, Lincoln, Neb.

Mr. Bryan spent the day recuperating his strength at the Auditorium Annex and in receiving friends in his apartment. Political leaders of high and low degree flocked to his room to shake his hand and speak some parting words of encouragement on the eve of the battle of the ballots. There was not much enthusiasm on tap and in a few instances the meetings between the candidate and his followers were affecting. They shook hands and betrayed the emotions of men who feared they were meeting for the last time in the trenches before the citadel.

The Commoner himself was not feeling in a mood to communicate enthusiasm. He had reached Chicago early in the morning, looking haggard and worn. He moved mechanically through the reception accorded him by Roger Sullivan and the Chicago committee. Some people observed that he looked like a man who was beaten and knew it only too well. It had been announced by the democratic managers that the candidate would attend church, but Mr. Bryan was so fatigued that he slept till nearly noon.

Callers Cheer the Commoner.

After a hearty breakfast the "Peerless One" revived and began to take an interest in the messages and the callers he received. John E. Lamb, Moses Wetmore, and other commanders at the democratic national headquarters came in to pay their respects, and the candidate began to regain cheerfulness as he was told of the rosy prospects of democratic victory.

About 2:30 o'clock Mr. Bryan received a pressing invitation to join a party of friends dining in the grillroom of the Annex adjoining the Pompeian room. The candidate responded and there found Don Farnsworth, Charles A. Towne, George Fred Williams, Senator Gore of Oklahoma, John A. Tomlinson, Urey Woodson, Willis J. Abbot, J. W. Reilly, Martin J. Wade, P. L. Hall, and J. W. Clifton. Mr. Bryan ordered a cup of coffee and chatted with the company.

Chicago Leaders Fail to Call.

After this the callers began to multiply. The committeemen and other headquarters functionaries repeated their visits for the purpose of bidding their leader farewell. Mr. Towne appeared in company with Orva G. Williams, the Chicagoan who distinguished himself at the Denver convention by leading all the cheering that greeted the nomination of Gov. Johnson. William L. O'Connell, chairman of the democratic county central committee, paid the candidate the official respects of the Chicago leaders.

O'Connell was the only Chicago leader who put in an appearance during this general reception period. Roger Sullivan was conspicuously absent, all the more so in view of the fact that Bryan had invited him to call. Mr. Sullivan spent the afternoon at the state headquarters at the Sherman house. The other Chicago leaders likewise remained away. It was not secret that most of them were hoping "sore" over the fiasco of Bryan's whirlwind Chicago finish, which they laid to pull off the night before without Bryan himself. The leaders were dejected because they knew they were not standing particularly well with their constituents as a result of the sad affair.

Say Bryan Delay Was Conspiracy.

Mr. Sullivan and State Chairman Boeschenstein laid the blame to a conspiracy of the republican party and the railroads to spoil Bryan's triumph. Others blamed the Indiana committee for trying to monopolize Bryan, while others petulantly asserted that Bryan was not sorry to miss Illinois, which he has no hope of carrying, so long as he could speak in Indiana, which is a doubtful state.

In the midst of the parting calls Mr. Bryan talked a few minutes to the newspaper reporters. He was asked if he was feeling confident and he replied that he was.

"I am feeling more confident than I did in 1900 or 1896," he added.

He said he had not perused the forecasts of the political managers and political writers, and then was asked if he cared to make a forecast of his own.

Makes No Definite Forecast.

"I do not care to make any list of states in estimating the result of the election," said Mr. Bryan. "For while I think the result is more certain in some states than in others, I would not want to discourage democrats in the less certain states by making discriminations.

"I believe that we will have votes to spare in the electoral college and a considerable majority of the popular vote.

"This is a minimum estimate. If the reports which we have received directly from the democrats and indirectly from the republicans are half true, we will have a large majority both in the electoral college and in the popular vote."

The talk then drifted to reminiscences of the candidate's canvass now drawing to a close, and Mr. Bryan took occasion to deny the reports that he is worn out and discouraged.

"I never have felt better at the close of a campaign than I do today," he said. "It has been the easiest campaign I ever made."

Bennett Will Case Is Ignored.

He refused to comment on the review of the Bennett will case put out by the republican national committee, though his expression at the moment spoke volumes of chagrin and indignation. Then he was asked if he had seen Roger Sullivan, and replying in the negative, he appeared to be reminded of the delicate situation produced in Chicago by his failure to appear Saturday night.

"I was much disappointed at missing the Chicago meetings last night. In arranging for the last week of the campaign, I made it a condition that I should reach Chicago Saturday night. That has been my calculation all the time. I was grievously disappointed by reason of the delays.

"The trip arranged for the day was a long one, with large numbers of stops. The meetings were unexpectedly large, and in several places the speaking stands were fixed some distance from the train. We had to ride slowly through crowded streets to reach the stands. There were three changes from one road to another, each one occupying more time than was expected. Then our engine broke down. The substitute engine had to be turned around at the next station, and that caused a long delay.

Illinois Democratic Leaders Praised.

"I never had such a series of delays in this campaign. I appreciate the efforts put forth by the Illinois state and Cook county committees to make these meetings a success, and from the reports I have received they had enormous crowds. No one of those who attended the meetings regrets more than I do the delay. I may add that I am much pleased with the reports I have received from Illinois both from the state and Cook county.

"I believe that the republicans of Illinois have an unpleasant surprise coming when they read the returns from their state on election day."

Whether he meant that he or Stevenson or both would carry the state the candidate did not care to specify.

Over at the democratic state headquarters in the Sherman house Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Boeschenstein were bearing all day from leaders who had worked hard to get up the Sunday night meetings. Bryan had been advertised as the star attraction at these meetings, not because the leaders had any hope of carrying Illinois for Bryan, but because they figured that the presence of the presidential candidate and the attendant enthusiasm would materially help the state and county tickets. When this assistance failed them the leaders began to get the blues.

Charges Republicans Aided Conspiracy.

"There is not the slightest particle of doubt," said Mr. Boeschenstein, "that the republican managers and the Vanderbilt system of railroads entered into a conspiracy to prevent Mr. Bryan from reaching Chicago for the finale of his campaign. He spoke at Plymouth, Ind., in the afternoon. From there it was necessary for him to take the Lake Erie and Western railway, a Vanderbilt line, in order to reach the Lake Shore road, another Vanderbilt line, on which he was to come to Chicago.

"At Chesterton the train stopped and the explanation was given that the engine had gone dead. Now, that division of the road terminates at Michigan City, not more than twenty miles north of Chesterton, where there were plenty of engines in reserve. Yet it took four hours for this Vanderbilt road to get a relief engine to Chesterton. It is only too plainly a conspiracy against Bryan."

Mr. Boeschenstein also criticised the Indiana state committee for compelling the candidate to follow a schedule that left him only just enough time to reach Chicago by 8 p. m. had all gone well.

Mr. Sullivan backed up Mr. Boeschenstein in the charge of a conspiracy.

"I have telegraphed and telephoned to railroad and political officials in Indiana," he said, "and I cannot discover the slightest ground for the story that the engine broke down. It was a fake excuse, pure and simple."

Sullivan Gets Thanks from Bryan.

Mr. Sullivan finally dissipated the impression that he was sulking by appearing at the Annex shortly before 6 p. m. with his two automobiles. He was accompanied by Mr. Boeschenstein. They had a few words with Bryan and shortly afterward the candidate, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Boeschenstein, and a few other democratic officials entered the cars and drove to the La Salle station.

The party escorted Mr. Bryan aboard the 6:20 Rock Island train for Kansas City and Mr. Sullivan had a final word with the "peerless leader." It is understood that the Nebraskan thanked Roger, not officially but personally, for the manner in which the campaign has been conducted in Illinois. He said that all that could have been desired had been done by the Illinois leaders, under the direction of Mr. Sullivan, and he should always feel under great obligations to the committeeman representing Illinois.

Mr. Bryan will reach Kansas City this morning and will leave immediately on a tour of northern Kansas towns. The meeting scheduled at Omaha today was called off in order to permit the candidate to make the Kansas speeches and reach Lincoln tonight.

Plan for Bryan Homecoming.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 1.—Tomorrow night will see in Lincoln the greatest demonstration of the campaign in this state. Mr. Bryan is expected to reach home in the early evening and will make his final address of the campaign, an outdoor speech from the balcony of a hotel in the heart of the business district.

It will be a Lincoln crowd to heard him, but the homecoming welcome is expected to be demonstrative. A parade has been arranged on an elaborate scale, with all the pyrotechnic accessories that go with the closing of a presidential campaign.

BROKERS "TO BEAT" ELECTION.

Chicago Dealers Will Keep Offices Open All Night to Receive Cable Orders.

Offices of Chicago stock brokers will blaze with light tomorrow night and cablegrams and telegrams will be dispatched and received in unwonted numbers. Some of the brokerage houses will keep open all night and maintain communication by wire and cable with New York and London. Others will close as soon as it is known definitely that Taft is elected.

One reason for keeping open election night lies in the fact that the London exchange will open six hours before the Chicago exchange in the morning, this being due to the difference in time.

Barrell of Finley Barrell & Co., in speaking of his plans for election night, said:

"If Taft is elected, as there seems every reason to believe he will be, numerous buying orders probably will be received during the night. Of course, selling orders are to be expected in the unlikely event of Bryan's election."

F. D. Countiss of S. B. Chapin & Co. was optimistic respecting the chances of electing Mr. Taft.

"We shall keep open until 10 o'clock if Taft is elected," said Mr. Countiss. "Of course, if Bryan were to be elected, a brokerage house might keep open indefinitely."

Willard Hall Noon Meetings.

Willard hall noonday meetings this week will be in charge of the following: Monday and Tuesday, the Rev. Edwin Drew; Wednesday, Dr. W. H. Matthews; Thursday, Christian Missionary alliance; Friday, prayer praise service; Saturday, Adjts. Rutbell and Roberts.

Old War Bugler to Sound Reveille to Awaken Eighteenth Ward Voters.

WILLIAM G. JAMES

Tuesday morning at 6 o'clock, not a minute before or after, the voters, particularly the old soldiers, of the Eighteenth ward will be awakened by the familiar call of reveille. The call will be sounded by William G. James, 435 West Madison street, a veteran of the civil war, who served in the First Wisconsin heavy artillery, first as an artilleryman and later as a bugler. James is a loyal republican and hopes with his bugle blasts to aid the cause of the party. Shortly after the reveille call he will sound assembly, which will be a signal for the polling places to open their doors to the voters. In the evening at the close of the polls he will sound taps.

POLITICAL SEERS STAND PAT

Hitchcock and Mack Maintain Assurances of Success.

TAFT IS CERTAIN TO WIN.

Republicans to Carry New York, Indiana, Ohio and New Jersey.

New York, Nov. 1.—At both republican and democratic headquarters in this city today it was announced that the work of the respective organizations in the campaign of 1908 was at an end. National Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock of the republican committee and National Chairman Norman E. Mack of the democratic committee are going home to vote and will return to this city Tuesday afternoon to receive returns at headquarters. Mr. Hitchcock goes to West Newton, Mass., and Mr. Mack to Buffalo.

Messrs. Mack and Hitchcock adhered to the forecasts given out on Friday and Saturday, the democratic chairman contending that Mr. Bryan will receive 333 votes and Mr. Hitchcock announcing himself as positive in his belief that Mr. Taft wil have 325 votes in the electoral college. As only 242 votes are necessary to elect, both chairmen are figuring on wide margins for their respective candidates.

Candidates Remain in Field.

While the national chairmen believe that all has been done that can be done to elect their chiefs, the candidates themselves will continue in the fight until practically the last minute. Mr. Taft, after spending today in Buffalo, goes tomorrow morning to Cleveland, where he will speak in the afternoon, and to Youngstown, where he speaks tonight, hurrying thence to Cincinnati to vote on Tuesday and hear the results of the election.

Mr. Bryan intends to put in the day campaigning in northwest Kansas and will be at Lincoln for a home coming demonstration in the evening.

At republican headquarters today it was asserted that Chairman Mack's estimate of 333 votes for Mr. Bryan had been expected, in view of the same claims made earlier in the campaign. It was further said that Mr. Mack had included in his list states that were practically conceded by state leaders to be republican.

It also was said that Mr. Hitchcock was willing to stand or fall by his prediction of 325 votes made on Friday and was perfectly satisfied that it would be more nearly correct than Mr. Mack's when the returns are in.

"Doubtful" States All for Taft.

Mr. Hitchcock announced that there had ceased to be any doubt as to republican success in such states as Indiana, Ohio, and New Jersey—all claimed by Mr. Mack—and it was added by a member of his staff that the republican national committee is as sure of New York as it is of Pennsylvania.

Republican County Chairman Parsons of New York county summarized the situation in Manhattan and the Bronx, two of the five boroughs included in Greater New York, thus today:

"If Mr. Bryan carries New York county at all it will be by a plurality of from 40,000 to 60,000. District leaders believe that Gov. Hughes will run not more than 20,000 behind Mr. Taft in this county."

HIGHER CRITICS DEFENDED BY FOUNDER OF CHAUTAUQUA.

Bishop Vincent Says Earnest Study of the Bible by Scholarly Men Should Be Encouraged.

Higher criticism of the bible was defended yesterday morning by Bishop John H. Vincent of the Methodist Episcopal church, founder of the Chautauqua movement at the university religious services in Mandel hall, University of Chicago.

"I have little sympathy with those who assail the higher criticism," he said. "It is of course quite true that at times certain critics are prone to become too radical in their new theories, but on the whole I feel that the men who study the bible in an earnest and truth seeking spirit are not to be denounced, but helped if they are right and set right if they are wrong."

At night Bishop Vincent spoke at the Sunday Evening club meeting in Orchestra hall on "The Straightforward Man."

"Such a man," he said, "was Dwight L. Moody, whom I met in Chicago in 1857. He was plain, rough, and uneducated, and one day I suggested that he brush up a little on his grammar. I've been ashamed of it ever since. We were great friends, and I've seen Moody talk to some poor old fellow who was going to the dogs just as if he had a million dollars and Moody wanted $50,000 of it to build a Y. M. C. A.

ITALIAN VOTERS APPLAUD WAYMAN

Candidate Addresses Enthusiastic Sunday Meeting on the North Side.

BOHEMIANS HEAR APPEAL

C. J. Doyle Recounts Patriotism of Gov. Deneen's Father During the Civil War.

John E. W. Wayman captured the Italian vote of the north side yesterday at a crowded meeting at Larrabee street and Chicago avenue. The meeting was effusively enthusiastic, and was conceded to be the largest political gathering ever held in the district.

When Mr. Wayman spoke of Garibaldi as the representative of liberty in Italian history, and linked the hero's name with the names of American patriots, the Italian voters applauded vigorously. When Mr. Wayman left the meeting he carried with him the assurance that the men who heard him will cast their votes in his behalf tomorrow.

Mr. Wayman's talk was brief, and for the most part dealt with the state's attorney's office.

Would Serve All the People.

"It is a law office and requires a lawyer to conduct it," he said. "If I am elected you will not find a regiment of office boys waiting to bar you from my desk. I intend to sit where you can see me and reach me to tell your troubles. It will be the people's office and the people are destined to find out that what I say is so.

"Either 'Jake' Kern or your humble servant is going to be elected, and it is not going to be 'Jake' Kern. Kern is not standing on his record. He is not even running on his record." Congressman Henry Sherman Boutell and other speakers addressed the meeting.

At 383 Clark street, Mr. Wayman spoke similarly to citizens of the First ward. He said that the day was Sunday and he did not care to go into a lengthy discussion of politics. He was well pleased with his reception.

At Forty-eighth and Paulina streets, Mr. Wayman addressed an audience largely composed of Polish-Americans. The crowd was a big one and cheered the speaker frequently. Several other meetings which had been scheduled were not reached by Mr. Wayman on account of his heavy speaking schedule and the condition of his throat, which made it impossible for him to do as much speaking as he desired to do. Other speakers appeared in his place at halls which he was unable to reach.

Bohemians Hear Two Addresses.

C. J. Doyle of the republican state headquarters addressed an audience of Bohemians in behalf of Gov. Deneen at Bohemian Turner hall, 1200 South Forty-first avenue. Joseph Z. Uhlir and others addressed the audience in Bohemian on national issues and on the state's attorneyship. The name of Mr. Wayman was greeted with generous applause.

In making his appeal in behalf of Gov Deneen, Mr. Doyle appealed to the patriotism of his hearers. He contrasted the attitude of Adlai E. Stevenson at the time of the civil war with that of the Deneen family.

"In those dark days," said Mr. Doyle, "there was a man who had just been elevated to the presidency of a small college. He had a young wife, but when he heard the shot at Sumter he kissed her good-by and answered the call of the flag.

"That man was wounded on the field of Vicksburg. With others he was placed on a transport and started northwards. When the transport reached Memphis it was found that the weather was so hot that the doctors decided that the man of whom I speak could not live. He was taken off the transport and placed with like victims in a military hospital. A telegram saying that he could not live was sent to his wife in the north.

Young Wife Starts South.

"When that brave woman received the message with aching heart she took her infant son, the son who had been born while the father was away fighting for the flag, and started south. By tedious degrees the boat proceeded, until one night as the sun was sinking in the west the young wife stepped on Tennessee soil, carrying her baby in her arms.

"She made inquiries and found her way to the hospital tents. In the dim light she came to the cot whereon lay her husband.

"He recognized his wife and saw his son for the first time. With feeble fingers he clasped the hands of wife and son and with feverish lips kissed the brow of the boy. That boy was Charles S. Deneen, now the governor of Illinois."

Mr. Doyle left his hearers in the main to deduce their own conclusions respecting the war record of Mr. Stevenson.

MANY FAVOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

The Illinois Equal Suffrage association recently sent letters to the republican and democratic candidates for congress and the state legislature, asking them to express their attitude on the question of extending suffrage to women.

ELECTION FLASHES FOR CITY

"Tribune" to Give Electric Bulletins from Fifteen Stations.

GIANT SEARCHLIGHTS, TOO.

Great Colored Beams Will Write Ballot Story on the Sky.

The most extensive arrangements ever made to communicate the results of an election to the people in record time have been completed by THE TRIBUNE. From fifteen distinct stations in every section of the city covering over 300 square miles, the eagerly awaited news will be distributed to the 2,000,000 inhabitants of Chicago.

Unique features will be the three giant searchlights that will sweep the horizon in twenty mile circles announcing the men elected to the presidency, the gubernatorial chair, and the office of state's attorney. Another feature, which will be without a rival, will be the electric signboard at State and Randolph streets, which will flash from its 1,000 square feet of surface alive with electricity, bulletins giving detailed reports of the returns from city, state, and nation.

In two other ways the eagerly expected figures will be communicated to the voters. Eight of the largest halls in the city have been rented for the night by THE TRIBUNE, and in them, from 7 o'clock on, the results will be displayed. Western Union wires will run direct to the halls and the audiences will be kept minutely informed of the progress of the count.

Stereopticans at Many Corners.

Beside these indoor affairs three stereopticons will be used to inform the crowds on the streets of the victories and defeats of the day. These will be at:

Clark street and Sheffield avenue.

Milwaukee avenue and Noble street.

Halsted street and Wrightwood avenue.

The indoor meetings will be held at the following places:

The Coliseum, Fifteenth street and Wabash avenue.

Dexter Park amphitheater, stockyards, Halsted and Forty-second streets.

First Regiment armory, Michigan avenue and Sixteenth street.

Second Regiment armory, Washington boulevard and Curtis street.

Seventh Regiment armory, Wentworth avenue and Thirty-fourth street.

Lincoln Turner hall, Diversey boulevard and Sheffield avenue.

Social Turner hall, Belmont avenue and Paulina street.

Wicker Park hall, North and Milwaukee avenues.

These halls will accommodate about 40,000 people in comfort. Seats will be free and bands will furnish music through the evening.

The great sign on top of the building at Randolph and State streets is expected to attract attention. The letters used will be 3½ feet high by 2½ feet wide, and each will be of solid electricity. The total area of the sign is 1,000 feet. It is the only one of its kind in the world and was invented by Leon J. Kahn of Louisiana. A simple typewriter attachment with a standard keyboard controls the letters of fire.

Shafts of Light to Tell Story.

The three searchlights will be located at the following places:

Roof of the Tribune building, Madison and Dearborn streets.

Roof of the Tribune building, Madison and Dearborn and Monroe avenue.

Roof of warehouse, Fortieth avenue and Madison street.

The signals will be as follows:

Presidential returns, white beams.

Gubernatorial returns, red beams.

State's attorneyship returns, green beams.

Republican elected, Taft, Deneen, or Wayman, the great shaft of light, ten miles long, will be moved in steady circles around the horizon.

Democratic elected, Bryan, Stevenson, or Kern, the light will be moved around the horizon in an enormous zig zag, the light flashing from the horizon to the zenith and back.

As long as the election is in doubt the shafts of light will point directly to the zenith.

INHALES GAS AFTER QUARREL.

Row with Young Woman Believed by Police to Have Prompted Suicidal Act of Bartender.

Henry Buenger, 219 Clybourn avenue, a bartender, committed suicide at his home yesterday afternoon by inhaling illuminating gas. Buenger's act is believed by the police to have been prompted because of a quarrel with a young woman who is said to be married.

Charles Donovan, a painter, 7019 Madison avenue, was found dead in bed at his home last evening by H. E. Curtis, who lives in the same building. Gas was escaping from a water heater.

Yesterday afternoon, according to the Woodlawn police, Donovan told Curtis he was preparing to take a bath. Later Curtis noticed the excessive heat of the water in his flat and upon investigation found Donovan dead.

Boat Stalled Second Time.

The coal freighter McWilliams, which became grounded in the draw of the Kinzie street bridge Saturday morning, again caused a delay in traffic yesterday when it became stalled in the draw of the Chicago avenue bridge.

GUNSAULUS LAUDS RELIGION OF TAFT

Central Church Pastor Decries Attempts to Belittle Ohioan's Creed.

CRITICS CALLED BIGOTS.

Declares Country's Destiny Needs Statesman, Not One Merely Versed in Catechism.

"I am not speaking of the past nor pleading for the present, but, O, my heaven! I would like to strike this thing so hard this morning that it may have no future. Its past has been so foul with treachery, so slithering with the spilled blood of innocence."

So said the Rev. Frank Gunsaulus, president of Armour institute and pastor of the Central church in the Auditorium, from the pulpit yesterday morning speaking of the attempt to make political capital out of Mr. Taft's religion. He did more than condemn the bigotry of the attempt and its evil possibilities for the future of the nation, but he also defended in no uncertain terms the essential tenets of the religion of the presidential candidate.

Tells of Fight on Taft.

"My desk for weeks," he said, "has been littered with requests that I preach against Mr. Taft because he is a Unitarian. My brother ministers, the country over, have been similarly bombarded. There are 200,000 men whose votes will be influenced by this matter.

"In reply to these requests I say: Look at Holland, its history so bloody that no man can read it without tears, because more was thought of 'creed' than of 'deed.'

"Shall we create a pretentious bigoted mummery to control the affairs of this republic? Can we do it and remain a republic? This power never touched a flag without soiling it. I care not whether it was led by presiding elders, by Catholic bishops, by members of a Protestant synod, or by Lutheran ecclesiastics. Butcheries and slaughter result when it is assumed that men are fitted to rule the commonwealth by acuteness in theological debates.

"If my good friend, Mr. Bryan, had been so assailed I should have taken the same stand against theology dictating politics. I am glad one candidate is a good Christian. I am glad to live in the same country with a man who can assemble audiences to listen with delight to such a lecture as 'The Prince of Peace.'

Taft Able, but Unorthodox.

"But on the other hand, and assailed because of his religious beliefs, is another man of extraordinary ability and brain. But he is not considered orthodox. Neither was Paul orthodox. He was considered the heretic of his age.

"To the Unitarian controversy of a bygone day we owe the humanizing of God. This was what made it necessary to rewrite the constitution and strike the shackles from a million slaves. Remember it was the 'orthodoxy' of the day that stood out against the black man. As long as men believed in a God that would elect a certain few to everlasting life, creating a sort of 'aristocracy of the skies,' some of us had little chance.

"Charles Sumner, who was beaten in the United States senate by a bully and carried the marks on his noble form through life, was found in a Unitarian church. Shall we, therefore, refuse to honor the good he did? Franklin, Joseph Priestly, Thomas Jefferson, Robert Shaw, all these had incomplete ideas of the trinity. The statesmanship of the '60s grew out of the fact that people came to believe that the 'under dog' was a human being. This is a theology man may trust. Shall we tear the hymns of Oliver Wendell Holmes and the poems of William Cullen Bryant from our books because they were not considered sound? Shall we resist the influences of Emerson and abolish Whittier and Longfellow?

Country Needs a Statesman.

"Who is best fitted to guide our ship of state with its valuable cargo, the statesman or the man versed in the catechism?"

"Let us deliver our flag from all bigotry whatever. Let ours be a government of the people by the people in the belief that all men are created free and equal before God."

Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, from the pulpit of Sinai temple, yesterday defended the administration of Gov. Deneen, particularly with regard to the management of the charitable institutions. He said that the charges of corruption were lies manufactured by disgruntled politicians.

ABBOT INSISTS BRYAN HAS WON.

Professes to Portray Confidence of Colleagues at Democratic Headquarters.

KEEPS AT WORK ANYHOW

Hands Out Quotations from Nathan Straus, Count Tolstoi, and Others of Note.

BY WILLIS J. ABBOT.

Manager of publicity department, democratic national committee.

[Copyright: 1908: By Tribune Company, Chicago.]

This is the end of the campaign, and as it has reached its conclusion we who have been working at the headquarters of the democratic national committee are confident that the democracy has won.

There are reasons for this confidence. We believe not merely that Mr. Bryan himself has won the favor of the people of the United States but we get concrete statements from such states as Indiana and Ohio, Oregon and California to the same effect.

The Bryan movement is not a new one, not novel. It has been fought out for some twelve years past. Today it stands as the strongest political force in the United States. I have, for example, a telegram from Oregon which reads in this way:

"I have considered Oregon doubtful. Now the trend is strong to Bryan. Out of 2,194 votes taken at Portland today by ballot upon a wager Bryan received 1,296, Taft 808. This would indicate Bryan would carry the state."

That was Oregon. I have from Ohio and from New York telegrams of the same sort.

Letter from Nathan Straus.

And here is a letter from Nathan Straus, addressed to the Hon. Samuel Alschuler, which appears to be of more or less importance. I summarize it. Mr. Straus says:

"I am confident that the election of the democratic candidates will have the effect of steadying and settling business conditions and will hasten progress toward permanent prosperity. I am convinced that the efforts to spread a fear that panic and disaster will follow a change of administration are desperate, partisan attempts to obscure the real issue. These efforts are easily traceable to two or three centers where trust and tariff interests are dominant.

"The republican party would lead to four years more of agitation and uncertainty. A democratic victory will lead to such a reduction of the tariff as the people demand, and business will be put on a firm foundation for permanent prosperity.

"The tariff reduction declared for in the democratic platform and indorsed by our candidates will impose no hardship on any business, and there never was a time when trade conditions should be as little affected by the gradual change in contemplation. And it will save millions to the great body of the people on whom the tariff and trust burdens rest so heavily.

"Important as all this undoubtedly is I remember that foreign born citizens, especially those of our faith, should realize another one of the greatest issues of the campaign. It is whether this republic in all its liberty, simplicity, and majesty shall continue, or whether we shall drift into a centralized, autocratic, personal government. Our people know too well the burdens of despotism, the hardships of bigotry, and the intolerance and the exactions of a perpetual officeholding class. They must rebuke and resent the tendency shown in the republican party toward the subversion of our free institutions."

Quotes from His Speeches.

Mr. Straus then quotes this extract from one of his speeches: "We want a change that will show that this is a government by the people and that will permit us to return to the peaceful enjoyment of our unequaled opportunities. Continued one man or one party power endangers our liberties. Our officeholders must not become our rulers. Our representatives in the halls of congress must not become independent of the will of their constituents. Our executives must not assume to be the whole sum and substance of the conscience and the morals of the country, and supreme in their judgment of what we should all believe in and practice. It will not do to substitute a plan of self-perpetuating government. Therefore I urge that so far from being afraid of a change in our national administration, we should welcome it and realize that it means progress."

Continuing, Mr. Straus has this to say, what Count Tolstoi said about Mr. Bryan:

"Mr. Bryan I greatly respect and sympathize with, and know that the basis of his activity is kindred to mine in his sympathy with the interests of the working classes, his anti-militarism, and his recognition of the fallacies produced by capitalism."

Mr. Bryan is a man who holds no public office. He is simply an American citizen who has worked for the good of the cause in which he believes.

Tolstoi's Tribute to Bryan.

And yet from the greatest of all thinkers and workers in Russia there comes now this tribute to him as a man. It is easy for the president of the United States to secure from the emperor of Germany or from the king of England words of approval. The rulers of lands know each other and express their warm affection for each other. But for a mere citizen, a mere commoner, to receive from another commoner, living in the darkest part of Russia, such a tribute to his work for all the good of the common people is absolutely unprecedented.

There are few great industries that Standard Oil money is not more or less invested in. And mark now that every one of these institutions is contributing to the republican campaign fund. The Roosevelt administration has not been unfriendly to the steel trust. Not one single step has been taken by it to destroy the steel trust. On the contrary, the steel trust has received most profitable contracts from the Roosevelt administration, and we find the steel trust through its managers warmly applauding the present republican administration and the candidacy of the man who is expected to carry out the policies of that administration.

Calls the Campaign Quiet.

The campaign has not been a savage one. Only toward the end was there injected into it any sort of bitter personal attack on the part of either candidate against the other. It was in the main a campaign in which issues, not men, were mainly involved. Only President Roosevelt introduced the element of personal antagonism. It was he who first addressed open letters to Mr. Bryan, in which he attacked the democratic candidate personally as well as his friends. Except for the Roosevelt interference in the campaign, it has been a clean fair fight.

DEBS TALKS TO WILD THRONG

Seventh Regiment Armory Is Packed to Doors by Socialists.

FLAGS OF RED DEFY SHIPPY.

Presidential Candidate Declares Rockefeller Is for Bryan.

The socialist party parade yesterday afternoon was outclassed for impressiveness by the demonstration given for Eugene V. Debs, presidential nominee, at the Seventh Regiment armory.

The procession through the streets of the south side was orderly and well managed, but the crowd that filled the big new armory almost to the doors, broke from the control of the leaders and became a howling mob when their national standard bearer showed himself.

Inflamed by the sight of half a dozen red banners, flaunted from the balcony, where the speakers were seated, and a score of standards bearing mottoes attacking capital, the 5,000 men, women, and children cheered themselves hoarse. The crush was terrible and several persons were slightly injured in the jam.

Enthusiasm Is Not Curbed.

The uproar continued so long that when Debs was speaking in a hoarse voice he could not be heard more than fifty feet. A still greater outburst came when William D. Haywood waved a red silk handkerchief at his auditors.

"I love the red flag," he declared. "I love the red flag more than I do the stars and stripes. If that be treason make the most of it. It is flying all over the country.

"Some one once said that if an Irishman were elected to the presidency he would paint the White house green. If we carry the election we will paint it red.

"Chief Shippy has told you that you must not show your colors. Here they are! I wave this red flag in defiance of Chief Shippy!"

Wave Red Flags in Defiance.

The audience could not catch his words, but they recognized the significance of the colors and thousands of little red flags bearing the name of Debs were waved by the excited throng.

The only live subject touched upon by Debs was the question of the beneficiary of Rockefeller's support.

"Rockefeller doesn't care whether Taft or Bryan is elected," he asserted, "but he says he is for Taft because he is for Bryan."

Among the standards shown were several relating to "starving school children."

MUSICIANS BLAME BURKE DEMOCRACY

Place It on "Defaulters' List" for Failure to Pay for Services of Band.

LABOR BODY TO INQUIRE.

Gompers' Political Program Indorsed Again by the Chicago Federation.

Robert E. Burke and his County Democracy were placed on the "defaulters' list" of the Chicago Federation of Musicians yesterday. This, in the eyes of union musicians, is even worse than being placed on the "unfair list," and "Bobby" Burke and his democracy now are on both.

The dispute between the County Democracy and the musicians' union was made a subject for investigation by the Chicago Federation of Labor at a meeting in the afternoon.

It appears that the democratic campaign has played havoc with the finances of Burke's organization, and now it is unable to meet a bill of $1,004 due the County Democracy band for services rendered at the democratic national convention at Denver and at William J. Bryan's home at Lincoln, Neb., last July.

The dispute was brought to the attention of the federation of labor through the following letter from Secretary George H. Riley of the musicians' union:

"The Cook County Democracy and Robert E. Burke were placed on the defaulters' list of the Chicago Federation of Musicians for failure to pay balance due for services rendered by one of our members, Charles S. Horn, at the democratic convention at Denver."

Horn is the leader of the County Democracy band. Burke paid an installment of $250 on the claim last Friday. President Joseph Winkler of the musicians' federation at first refused to accept money on the installment plan, but later he took the $250 on the theory that "half a loaf is better than no bread."

Tired of Temporizing.

A promise to pay the remaining $754 within a day or so was made by Burke. Apparently the members of Burke's democracy failed to "come across," for nothing further was heard from Burke by the officers of the union, so Burke and his organization were placed on the "defaulters' list."

"We put Burke and his democracy on the defaulters' list because the union is tired of temporizing with them any longer," said President Winkler. "Burke has made promise after promise to pay this bill and so far he has paid only $250. The union gave him plenty of time in the first place and if he complains of this action he has only himself to blame.

"When the matter became acute we gave him until last Friday to pay up, and when he failed to pay the full amount then we gave him an additional day of grace. He has failed to keep his promises and we have waited long enough. I have no other recourse than to carry out the instructions of the union."

The labor federation again indorsed President Gompers' political policy, against the opposition of the socialists and other delegates opposed to the Gompers-Bryan program. The action was taken on a circular letter from President Gompers urging all "men of labor and lovers of human liberty" to vote the democratic ticket.

Barney Berlyn, leader of the socialists in the federation, demanded that he be recorded as voting against the indorsement.

Striking Printers Ask Aid.

Edward J. Clark of the printing pressmen's union of Akron, O., made a plea for financial assistance in behalf of striking printers and pressmen in that city. He was authorized to visit every local union affiliated with the federation for the purpose of soliciting funds.

Delegates of the upholsterers' union reported that A. H. Revell & Co. had broken an agreement with the union calling for an eight and one-half hour day and fixed the working day at nine hours. Supt. of Schools Edwin G. Cooley, in a letter to the federation, accepted the invitation to address the organization on Nov. 15 on the subject of trade schools and their relation to organized labor.

A resolution indorsing the candidacy of Jacob J. Kern for state's attorney of Cook county was adopted by the board of business agents of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

NEW ODDS POSTED BY O'LEARY.

Combination Bets on Election Are Offered—Figures for Leading Candidates Remain Unchanged.

James O'Leary, the stockyards bookmaker, posted some new offerings in the way of election bets yesterday. He offered the following combinations:

Eight to 1, Bryan and Stevenson; 6 to 1, Bryan and Deneen; 11 to 5, Taft and Stevenson; 1 to 2, Taft and Deneen.

The "bargain" odds on Chafin, Debs, Hisgen, and Watson he raised from 50,000 to 1 to 60,000 to 1, and the odds on Sheen, McCaskrin, Brower, and Jennings he increased from 20 000 to 1 to 30,000 to 1.

The odds on the leading candidates still are: Bryan, 4 to 1; Deneen, 2 to 5; Taft, 1 to 6; Stevenson, 8 to 5.

ASK ALL TO VOTE ON DEEP WATERWAY.

Business Men Urge the People Not to Forget Little Ballot at Polls Tomorrow.

SHOW GAIN TO STATE.

But Illinois $20,000,000 Bond Issue Project Needs a Majority, It Is Pointed Out.

Business men, interested in the welfare of Chicago and the entire northwest, southwest, and west, on the prosperity of which Chicago is dependent, are becoming exercised over the fear that it is possible that in the interest in the election of president, governor, and other officers an important issue on the "little ballot" will be overlooked. It is whether or not the voters shall authorize the issue of bonds for the improvement of the Desplaines river for both power and deep waterway purposes.

Both political parties are advocating the issue and there is no known opposition to it except perhaps from the corporations who would like to obtain the water power for their own use. If such opposition exists, however, it has not shown itself openly.

The danger lies in the fact that voters may neglect to mark the little ballot at all. It is separate from the big ballot and easily dropped on the floor of the polling booth. Inasmuch as it proposes an amendment to the state constitution for which a majority of all the votes cast is required, a failure to vote on it, either for or against, means a vote against it.

Good Investment for State.

The necessity of the bond issue is not questioned by anybody. The improvement of the Desplaines river is imperative if the deep waterway between Lake Michigan and the gulf is to be made. The engineers have assured the people that if the state of Illinois will put the $20,000,000 necessary to do this work into the improvement, the revenue from the water power developed will not only pay off the bonds inside of twenty years but after that give the state a steady, perpetual income of at least $2,500,000 a year. It probably will be more as the price of electricity advances, as recent long time contracts made in Chicago indicates business men anticipate.

Democrats Prepare for Moving Day.

All political headquarters closed up shop yesterday. At the democratic national rooms the carpenters tore out the partitions over night, but they were in a hotel and every day counts on the bill. The republicans, being in an office building, were a trifle more deliberate, as their lease was for a certain term.

But none of the managers were around. Secretary Hayward had left the night before for Omaha, Charles Nagel was in St. Louis, Victor Rosewater had gone to Nebraska, and the rest of the managers had scattered one or two days before.

The democrats were in the same fix except that the unexpected presence of William Jennings Bryan had kept John E. Lamb here and given Tom Pence, the genial press agent, something to keep him busy on Sunday before election.

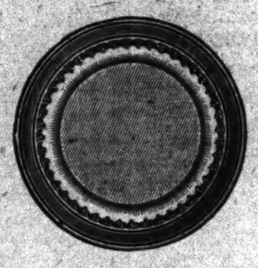
Fine Tableware



The courtesy of the home demands for every occasion that the table service be in keeping with the sentiment of the moment—that the indefinable grace of correctness be apparent in all appointments for the meal.

It is in this characteristic that distinctive tableware excels—there is harmony and completeness in such equipment that cannot be secured except in wares which are above the commonplace.

Minton, Cauldon, Copeland, Crown Derby—these are makers' names which insure for our lines of Fine English China an artistic and practical excellence unapproached by any other make, and an assurance is given of artistic beauty impossible in lines produced for promiscuous distribution. Visitors are invited—a call need not imply the obligation to purchase.

SPECIAL EXHIBITIONS

Thirty Paintings by Max Weyl, whose Pictures are included in many important collections, are displayed in Room "W." Although this artist was born in the Village of Muhlen am Neckar, in Wurtemburg, in 1837, his forty years of professional work in this country have made him essentially an American painter. Mr. Weyl received a Medal at the Cotton States and International Exhibition, Atlanta, Ga.; First Prize, Society of Artists, in 1891; First Prize, Cosmos Club Exhibition, 1903, at Washington, D. C., his home.

EIGHT DEPUTIES BALK PUGILISTS.

Prize Fighting in the Country Districts Dealt Blow by Strassheim.

ON WATCH SEVEN HOURS.

Eight Hundred Sports Disappointed When Boxing Match at Summit Is Prevented.

Sheriff Christopher Strassheim dealt a body blow to prizefighting in the country districts by having eight deputies stationed in and around Summit, Ill., yesterday to prevent a bout between "Dick" Fitzpatrick and "Chicken" Duffy. The peace officers came out victorious, but were compelled to watch for seven hours, chase through the woods, and exercise all their ingenuity to prevent being outwitted by the sporting men.

It was a contest between the lawmen and the law from noon until 7 o'clock and the deputies retreated only after being convinced there were no illuminating facilities to make the fight possible after dark. Threats to indict the principals were accepted with indifference, but they did have the effect of making Paul B. Holden, saloonkeeper, drive away spectators gathered in the pavilion at Leafy Grove after the "squared circle" had been roped off. From then on the danger lay in "pulling off" the affair" in the business." The crowd appeared to be "fight mad."

800 Go to Summit.

Altogether about 800 persons visited Summit in the hope of seeing a contest, but not that many were there at one time because many of the early comers went home, convinced there would be no fight, before the rest arrived.

Although the affair was supposed to have been more or less "private," the conductors of the Joliet electric road were able to announce to their passengers that the bout would not take place at Summit, the original place set, but at Leafy Grove, four miles distant. They had been frightened away from Summit by the attitude of E. H. Wilson, president of the village board, and the presence of Deputy Sheriff Henry F. Herrman and seven others working under his directions.

Duffy was the first of the principals to arrive, and when he and "Sam" Weber, supposed promoter of the affair, ascertained the condition of affairs at Summit they arranged with their followers to ride to the village of Lyons after announcing that the match was off, and come back when the deputies had departed. When Fitzpatrick was taken to Leafy Grove his opponent and others met him, and a space in the pavilion was hurriedly roped off.

Large Sums Wagered.

Holden, lessee of the grove, whose saloon is described as a "blind pig," moved his stock of liquors from the shed which answers as a barroom to the pavilion and cautioned all visitors to come inside "so the people from the cars could not see what was going on." Meanwhile large sums of money were being wagered, the gloves were being carried over, and everything was in readiness for the fighters to don their trunks when Deputy Sheriff William J. Cameron appeared on the scene and announced his authority to stop the battle.

A half dozen of the leading sports encouraged Holden to disregard Cameron's orders on the ground that the local peace officers didn't object and the sheriff had no right to interfere. However, Cameron convinced Holden that Sheriff Strassheim was tired chasing prizefighters through the woods and proposed to make an example of Holden. Holden was told that his indictment might mean a year's imprisonment and $1,000 fine. He finally listened to the deputy and the pavilion was cleared and the liquor supply taken back to the bar.

Control was kept at Leafy Grove, and men were sent to The Sag, Lyons, Lemont, and other places while Herrman kept in view the big end of the crowd. The deputies were kept on the jump until the sports wearied of it all and returned home. Several other pairs of fighters were ready to "go on" for the money.

PHILANTHROPY AND CHARITY COMPARED BY BISHOP RHODE.

Churchman Says Gifts of Poor to Relieve Suffering of Unfortunate Brothers Outweigh Those of Millionaires.

Some interesting contrasts between "charity" and "philanthropy" not altogether to the credit of the latter were drawn by Bishop Paul Peter Rhode at a concert last night in the solemn hall of St. Stanislaus' Roman Catholic church for the benefit of St. Joseph's Home for the Aged and St. Vincent's Orphan asylum. The bishop said in part:

"It is not charity when John steals from Thomas and then gives a tenth of his stealings to the poor. It is not charity when a man gives for his own glorification, for the praise he receives and for the importance he gains thereby. It is not charity when a man gives merely for the appearance of the thing and not for love of the poor to whom he gives it.

"The true charity is found among the poor. Where is the millionaire agnostic who prates of his humanitarian views compared with the poor day laborer who gives up the necessities of life that he may contribute to his less fortunate brothers? How does the philanthropic compare with the Sisters of Mercy, the Sisters of Charity, the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, the Sisters of Providence, the Little Sisters of the Poor, all the orders of good ministering women who give their lives for their brothers and sisters because they love them and because they love God? Charity, the charity that merits eternal life, must come from the heart."

SALOONKEEPER IS KILLED AFTER QUARREL OVER CARDS.

Police Are Seeking Frank Renda, Who Is Said to Have Fired Shot Ending Louis Tunno's Life.

Louis Tunno was shot and almost instantly killed last night as a result of a quarrel over a game in his saloon at 178 West Polk street, and Peter Caperillo, a customer, was wounded by a stray bullet. Tunno died while on the way in an ambulance to the county hospital. He was 45 years old.

The quarrel started when Frank Renda and a companion disagreed at the card table. Tunno ordered both of them from the saloon, and Renda a minute after he had left returned to the place carrying a heavy revolver. His wife, Mrs. Jennie Renda, under arrest at the police station, is said to have witnessed the shooting from the outside of the saloon.

"I'll fix you for the insult," Renda called, as he dashed through the doorway and opened fire on Tunno. The saloonkeeper fell at the first shot, but Renda emptied his revolver, one of the bullets striking Caperillo in the right leg. Lieut. Costello obtained a good description of Renda and his arrest is looked for early this morning. He is said to be 25 years old and is well known in the Italian colony of the west side.

House of Commons Grille Hated by Suffragettes to Be Removed as Result of Recent Scene.

Ladies' gallery, British house of commons.

Suffragettes won one victory through the incident of last week, when two suffragette disturbers of the house of commons chained themselves to the grille work in the ladies' gallery before beginning their demonstration, and compelled the attendants to carry out a part of the grille with their prisoners. The grille, which makes a cage of the ladies' gallery, is to be removed as something which it is now seen can be put to use by the disturbers against whom it was erected.

JANITOR RUNS FOR SHERIFF

He Was a Good Janitor and Seeks Office at Manitowoc, Wis.

KEPT "SPITTOONES" CLEAN.

Republicans Support Democrat's Claim for Honors.

Two Rivers, Wis., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—"Joseph Willinger has no business now; the last steady job he had was cleaning the rooms and washing the spittoones (Manitowoc county orthography) in the county courthouse; since that time he has done some detective work for different parties." Therefore, Joseph's neighbors have indorsed him as a candidate for sheriff on the democratic ticket and all citizens of Manitowoc county, Wis., will have an opportunity to vote for him next Tuesday.

Mr. Willinger has been a candidate for sheriff before and, although he polished the cuspidors as carefully as he has since, his virtues were not then properly heralded to the world—his light was hidden under a sawdust box. Now, however, his republican neighbors have appointed a committee headed by Joseph Tesarik, O. Halvorsen, Erik Larson, and others to invite the attention of citizens to him.

Crisis Is at Hand.

Among other things this committee of republicans says:

"We, the undersigned republicans of Manitowoc county, see this election coming on and also we must elect a sheriff. We claim that a sheriff is only a workingman of the people of Manitowoc county. That being true, then we people should look at the man we select for that office, the kindness, the ability of handling the office, and the accommodation we voters are to receive of the sheriff we elect. Talk it over with your family.

"We say give Joseph Willinger a chance and we appeal to you as republicans to ask you go to polls on election day, Nov. 3, and make an X back of Joseph Willinger's name on the democratic ticket. You will never feel sorry for it if you do it, and don't be carried away by political talk."

To prove that Mr. Willinger was better beloved by his tenants than some janitors of flat buildings, his friends produce a resolution adopted by the county board, declaring:

"We can now safely say and vouch for that the work done around the courthouse has never been done in as clean and orderly manner as has been done by the present janitor, and we direct that the salary committee recommend a raise of salary for him." How's that for a record?

Indorsed by Chicago Cop.

Mr. Willinger is proud of his record as a police officer, and is campaigning upon his record as an auxiliary to the constituted authorities. He has published a list of testimonials from people with whom he has had official business. One letter is from Officer William Shea of Chicago, who writes:

"I have come in contact with a good many police officers from outside towns during my services on the Chicago police force, but will say in my judgment if the people of your town ever see fit to appoint or elect you to a higher position than the one you now hold they will make no mistake in selecting you, as I can guarantee that you are capable of filling any position which your town people may see fit to promote you to."

Other testimonials are from people Joseph has helped out of jail or treated kindly while incarcerated. He also declares that if elected he will make the janitor clean the "spittoones" as well as he did.

WHY DUKES WED U. S. GIRLS

Theosophist Thinks Miss Elkins Is a Reincarnated Duchess.

SHOWS SPIRIT OF ROYALTY.

May Have Walked in Imperial Courts in Other Life, Says Lecturer.

"Is Miss Katherine Elkins a reincarnated duchess?" "Why do European noblemen hunger for American heiresses?"

These two queries were handed to Lecturer Rogers of the Theosophical society at Mandel hall yesterday afternoon. Mr. Rogers replied that according to the tenets of theosophy the chances were highly in favor of considering Miss Elkins a reincarnated duchess.

"Miss Elkins has all the inherent attributes of a duchess," he said. "She lacks the title, that's all. She has the spirit of royalty and ultra aristocracy about her which attracted and held spellbound the duke of the Abruzzi. No doubt Miss Elkins developed the magnetic charms which her titled fiancé admires in several past lives or incarnations. In some former life she may have walked in the imperial courts of Rome. She may have had the high and mighty at her feet. Thus it is reasonable to suppose that, having had royal affiliations in a previous incarnation, it would only be natural that she would instinctively seek to identify herself again with the nobility.

"Birds of a feather will flock together, and in the same way noble souls are sure to be attracted to one another. If a woman happens to be a royalist in a past incarnation and is born again amid plebeian surroundings in the next incarnation it is probable indeed that she will feel intuitively that she belongs to a higher strata of society than that in which Karma has seen fit to place her. And so when a woman who was an aristocrat in a past life meets a person of blue blood she will instinctively feel that she is brushing elbows with one of her own kind."

PRIEST HERO DURING PANIC: QUENCHES FIRE AT THE ALTAR.

Father Ryan of Denver Calms Terror Stricken Congregation, Then Removes Robes and Puts Out Flames.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—Fire during 11 o'clock mass today at St. Leo's church furnished an opportunity for Father J. A. Ryan, assistant pastor, to prove himself a cool-headed hero during a panic. In one of the most solemn moments of the service a candle borne by an altar boy touched some of the inflammable decorations specially designed for All Saints' day. A thrill of horror ran through the crowded church as flames shot up the side of the wall and the congregation started in a mad rush for the doors.

"Men, be calm," shouted Father Ryan. "Take your time in getting out."

Removing his priestly robes, Father Ryan started to beat out the flames and the congregation remained rooted to the spot as he worked. It was the work of but a minute or two to extinguish the fire and then the priest signaled to the communicants to be seated and without more ado resumed the services.

It was in this church early this year that Alla shot down Father Leo.

Father Ryan's first heroism was displayed at the Iroquois theater fire in Chicago, when he is said to have rushed into the building and saved several persons.

THIEF FEARS NOT VIGILANTES

"Gentleman Burglar" Nominates Two Victims for Membership.

"PERSONAL" IS FISK'S REPLY

Man Who Was Robbed of Red Cravats Wants to Recover Cut Glass.

Round No. 2 in the war of wits between H. S. Fisk and the "gentleman burglar" starts this morning in the "personal column" of THE TRIBUNE.

When Mr. Fisk, whose flat at 1248 Jackson boulevard was robbed by a burglar of discriminating taste who took the best cut glass and all of Mr. Fisk's red cravats began through THE TRIBUNE columns to organize his vigilance committee he did not figure on hearing from his burglar visitor.

Saturday Mr. Fisk received a letter from "A Gentleman of the Profession" informing him that "forewarned was forearmed" and advising him to visit certain other residents of the neighborhood, where it was learned that similar robberies had been committed by a man answering the description of the burglar who looted the Fisk apartment.

Replies to Robber's Note.

Today Mr. Fisk offers the following:

PERSONAL—To the "gentleman burglar" who robbed my flat: Your polite letter nominating two other men whom you have robbed as members of my proposed vigilance committee received. It shows you are not only a clever thief, but have a delicious sense of humor. I have more confidence than you in the police and believe you will be captured and sent to the penitentiary. In the meantime, if you have sentiment as well as humor and cleverness, I will appreciate the courtesy if you will send me the pawn tickets for the cut glass. The other articles can be replaced, but much of the cut glass was given to me.

H. S. FISK, 1248 Jackson boulevard.

Wants Pawn Tickets.

"Rather clever chap, isn't he?" commented the unwilling host of the "gentleman burglar."

"I only hope that his sentiment is as great as the humor he displays. There is no doubt that he has pawned the cut glass he stole, and surely he shouldn't mind sending me the pawn tickets."

RAVENSWOOD GETS WHISKY AS GIFT.

Hordes of Boys Follow Distributers and Halloween Drinking Bouts Result.

ORGIES AROUSE PLACE.

Prosecutions Promised for "Attempt to Demoralize Prohibition District."

Free whisky in Ravenswood.

Small boys intoxicated on the streets of Ravenswood.

Young men of Ravenswood gathering for drinking bouts in a barn.

These are the things that have stirred that part of the city deeply.

The free whisky was distributed by the agents of a large wholesale liquor house from door to door through all the streets of Ravenswood last Thursday and Friday. The evil results culminated in a great orgy by a number of young men in a barn Halloween.

Boys Follow Distributers.

The distributers were followed by boys and young men and the bottles that were not quickly taken from the porches by the householders were gathered by the boys. Each bottle held a good sized drink of liquor. Many of the bottles were kept by the boys as souvenirs, others, more daring, drank until they were intoxicated.

One gang of boys of high school age collected over 100 bottles and consumed the contents in a barn on West Ravenswood place Saturday night.

Threatens Prompt Prosecution.

Daniel P. Cahill, 2812 North Paulina street, secretary of the North Protective association, declared yesterday that the distributers of the whisky will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

"The punishment will probably be entirely inadequate," he said, "for, as far as I know, the only thing we can indict them on is giving away liquor in prohibition territory. It was not advertising. It was a deliberate attempt to demoralize a neighborhood and children of a neighborhood. It was a shameful crime and we will try to reach those at the bottom of it and give them a lesson that will prevent its repetition."

MRS. HAINS URGED AGAINST HUSBAND

Intimates She May Take the Stand at Trial for Murder of Annis.

FALLS INTO CHURCH DEAD

Worshipers Panic Stricken as Fit Victim Pitches Headlong Through Entrance.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE.
New York, Nov. 1.

Mrs. Claudia Hains, wife of Capt. Peter C. Hains, who, with his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, is awaiting trial on the charge of murdering William E. Annis, has given out a statement in which she intimates she may be a witness against her husband. Mrs. Hains' statement says:

Mrs. Hains Might Testify Against Husband.

"Ever since the shooting of William E. Annis by Capt. Hains, the newspapers have been full of irresponsible statements issued on behalf of Capt. Hains and his brother attacking my character. The reason for these statements obviously has been that they would be the only means by which the two brothers could justify themselves in the eyes of the public and manufacture public sympathy in the community from which the jury before whom they will be tried is to be drawn.

"Although I have been deeply wronged by my husband, acting under the influence of his brother, I am still his wife and it would be unseemly for me to reply to newspaper statements, since my replies, while disproving charges against me, necessarily must take away the only chance my husband has for his life.

"But there is a limit beyond which patience is no longer a virtue and my power of endurance may not be strong enough to hold back my indignation. Many of my relatives and friends are urging me to become a witness in the approaching murder trial regardless of the injury the telling of the full truth would cause my husband and his brother. Whether I will do so or not will depend upon my ability to stand this torrent of abuse."

Pitching forward from the vestibule through spring doors into the auditorium in a fit, Solomon H. Hendricks fell dead in the aisle during the pastor's opening prayer tonight at St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal church, Flatbush. A panic ensued, which was ended by the Rev. John H. Willey, who stopped his prayer abruptly, hurried from the pulpit down the aisle to where Hendricks lay, with his daughter bending over him hysterically. Hendricks apparently died instantly. The body was removed, and after the excitement had subsided the services were resumed. Hendricks was a commercial traveler.

Sudden Illness of Magnate's Daughter Causes Excitement in Pittsburg Congregation.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—The sudden fainting of Miss Helen Frick, daughter of Henry C. Frick, the multimillionaire coke and steel manufacturer, in Calvary Episcopal church this morning, caused excitement. The lesson had been read and the bishop had just announced the text when Miss Frick arose in her seat and sank back again. Her father, who sat beside her, showed great concern. Then she arose to her feet the second time and attempted to leave the pew. As she did so she uttered a slight scream and fell into the arms of her father. Mr. Frick laid the fainting girl in the pew. Several worshippers rushed to his assistance. A physician in the congregation offered his services. Miss Frick soon revived and was taken home in her father's automobile.

CHILD'S HYMN WRITER DIES

Mrs. Carney, Famed as Author of "Little Drops of Water."

HOME LONG AT GALESBURG.

Born in New England and Attains to 85 Years.

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—Mrs. Julia Fletcher Carney, famed as author of the poems, "Little Drops of Water" and "Dead Gently," died today, aged 85 years, after three months' illness. She was born in Lancaster, Mass. Her published writings include "Gifts from India," "Poetry of the Season," and a series of Sunday school question books. For fifty years she lived here. At 71 she wrote "Fill Your Home with Sunshine." Two sons, Fletcher and James Carney, prominent attorneys, and a daughter, Mrs. Amanda J. Robertson, survive.

Mrs. Carney, then Miss Fletcher, was a Boston school teacher when she wrote "Little Drops of Water," the familiar child's hymn that became known all over the English speaking world. She was at the time taking shorthand lessons out of teaching hours, and also contributing to Sunday school tract literature. The first stanza had been written one night. The others, in her mind, were evoked the following morning in response to a classroom request for something original in stenographic symbols. Their appearance in print followed soon afterward, attracting much attention to the author. This was in 1845.

Little drops of water,
Little grains of sand,
Make the mighty ocean
And the pleasant land.

So the little moments,
Humble though they be,
Make the mighty ages
Of eternity.

So our little errors
Lead the soul away
From the path of virtue,
Far in sin to stay.

Little deeds of kindness,
Little words of love,
Help to make earth happy
Like the heaven above.

Miss Fletcher was married in 1849 to the Rev. Thomas J. Carney of the Universalist faith. They made their home first in Maine, and subsequently in Cooperstown, N. Y. In 1851 they journeyed to Illinois. The husband preached for a time in Chicago, and then went with his wife to Beloit, Wis.

DELOS A. BLODGETT DIES AT GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Formerly Large Holder of Property in Chicago and an Important Factor in His Own State.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—Delos A. Blodgett, millionaire lumberman and for many years factor in the industrial and political life of Michigan, died this afternoon at his home in this city at the age of 84 years.

A young wife and three small children survive him, besides two children by a former marriage, John W. Blodgett, Michigan member of the republican national committee, and Mrs. Edward Lowe. His first wife died in 1890.

At the time of his death he owned the old Chicago Times building and the building west of it, corner of Fifth avenue and Washington street. In former years his Chicago holdings had been large.

The first farm platted in Oceola county, Mich., was laid out by Mr. Blodgett. He founded the towns of Evart, Baldwin, and Hersey, aided in the development of agricultural interests in counties he lumbered over, and the blooded stock he raised on his farm at Hersey was famed throughout Michigan. He was long a director of the west Michigan state fair.

AVIATOR INJURED IN WIND WAGON.

Dr. Julian Thomas Is Hurled from Seat While Trying Out New Invention.

HEARD DANGER BEHIND.

Experimental Machine Going Thirty Miles an Hour When the Crash Came.

New York, Nov. 1.—[Special.]—The first serious accident to mar the aerial tryouts in the Morris Park aerodrome occurred today. Dr. Julian P. Thomas, driving the "Wind Wagon," a machine of his own invention, around the track, was hurled from his seat and pinned underneath the battered remnants of his vehicle after making a quick turn out to avoid a collision with a motorcycle.

For nearly an hour Dr. Thomas lay unconscious in the clubhouse. At first it was thought his spine had been broken by the fall. Later he recovered sufficiently to be taken home in his automobile. Dr. Thomas, who recovered only recently from a serious automobile accident, was tuning up his machine for the wind wagon races to be held Tuesday, when the accident occurred.

The wind wagon consists of a light chassis driven by a powerful four cylinder engine which supplies the motive power to a giant propeller attached to a framework. The whole contrivance is little more than a skeleton, being built primarily for lightness.

Starts Out for Trial.

About 5:30 he took it out on the track and started to make a fast circuit in the falling light. He completed the first mile safely and was coming down the stretch in front of the grand stand at a speed of nearly thirty miles an hour when he made a violent swerve to the side of the track, believing, as he later explained, that he heard a motorcycle coming up behind him.

The light framework could not stand the sudden strain, the front wheels buckling and the machine turning a complete somersault and striking Dr. Thomas, who had been hurled from his seat at the first crash.

Dr. L. Greene, a member of the aeronautic society, had the injured man carried into the clubhouse, where he and three other physicians, hastily summoned, made an examination.

They could discover no broken bones and Dr. Thomas finally regained consciousness. The physicians could not say positively whether Dr. Thomas had suffered any internal injuries.

Flying Contests Next Tuesday.

A large number of aeronauts Tuesday afternoon will compete in an unusual sort of aerial tournament at Morris park, Westchester. The Aeronautic society, under whose auspices the program has been arranged, declares that the exhibition of flying machines and the congress of aeronauts at the old racetrack will be one of the greatest the country has known.

Gliding contests, wind wagon races, kite flying, balloon experiments, and a free for all competition with flying machines are arranged for the day, with five motorcycle events at its conclusion.

The aviators will compete for three distinct trophies, two of which have been offered by publishers and one by the Aeronautic society. The latter prize of $2,500 is for the flying machine showing the greatest advance in scientific construction, regardless of the distance which it actually flies.

SIPS DEATH POTION IN ERROR.

Man Forgets Glass Contains Poison and Drops Dead After Taking Drink.

Gustave Strom, 12235 Ontario avenue, accidentally drank a glassful of vermin poison last night and died before medical aid could be summoned. Strom had been exterminating vermin in his home and had put a glass containing the poison on the sink in his kitchen. Later when he went to get a drink of water he saw the glass, and, not remembering what it contained, drained the contents. Death was almost instantaneous. The Hegewisch police were notified and an inquest will be held at the residence tomorrow morning. Strom was 35 years old.

Netherlands Prepare to Punish the Curacao Embargo.

LIMIT OF TIME IS REACHED.

November's Advent Finds Venezuelans Assembling Munitions.

WILLEMSTAD, Nov. 1.—The Netherlands government fixed Nov. 1 as the limit of time for Venezuela to revoke the decree of President Castro, issued on May 14, prohibiting the transshipment of goods for Venezuelan ports at Curaçao. President Castro has refused to revoke this decree, but as yet, so far as is known here, the Netherlands government has not decided upon definite action.

There has been much activity here of late, but in an interview today the governor of Curaçao said that Holland ought to have assurances that Venezuela had not revoked the decree at the last hour of the day fixed according to the ultimatum before taking any active measures.

He believed that his government had made ample preparations for any eventuality, and he added that a statement would doubtless be issued tomorrow announcing the position of Holland and Venezuela and what action it was proposed to take.

Venezuelans Expect a Blockade.

There is no question that Venezuelans believe the Netherlands government is preparing to blockade their ports. Advices received by the steamer Zulia from Maracaibo state it was reported on Oct. 24 that President Castro had ordered the mobilization of 50,000 troops to be ready Nov. 2.

Two days later there were rumors in Maracaibo that Gen. Nicholas Rolando, who previously had been charged with leading a revolutionary movement in Venezuela, was crossing the frontier with 20,000 men from Colombia.

No further account of this movement could be learned because mail and telegraphic communications were suspended the following day.

Shipments of Powder and Shell.

Large shipments of powder and shells have been received at Fort San Carlos, at Maracaibo lake, and there is much activity around the frontier.

Other advices reaching Willemstad again report the serious illness of President Castro, who, according to the report, was compelled to take to his bed on Thursday. There was some talk, too, of a trace of poison having been found in his food.

AMERICANS FETED AT KOBE.

Business Men from the Pacific Coast Get an Official Governmental Reception and See the Sights.

KOBE, Japan, Nov. 1.—The reception accorded the visiting business men from the Pacific coast of the United States today on their arrival here was most enthusiastic.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1908.

THIS will be about all of the wh------nd f---sh.

TAKE no thought for the morrow. Sufficient unto the day is the victory thereof.

CONCERNING which, it is to be observed that the intelligent voter is supposed to have done all his necessary thinking by this time.

THE official ballot will enable you to refresh your memory as to the names of the various presidential candidates.

MR. BRYAN never was quite so anxious to be elected as he is this time. He has done everything but weep.

UNCLE ADLAI STEVENSON promises he will be satisfied with one term. But he may have to be satisfied with even less than that.

FROM the diary and letters of Mrs. Hains it is evident that she was an artist at making whirlwind finishes.

YET this need not be the last of Candidate Higbee. He can enter the lecture field.

HAS it occurred to the Peerless Leader that he may be making a tactical blunder in telling his large and miscellaneous audiences that the republicans have an enormous corruption fund and are offering high prices for voters?

"IF I am elected," says Mr. Bryan, "I will have a wage earner in my cabinet." Only one? Then the other members of President Bryan's cabinet would not be expected to do anything to earn their yearly wage of $12,000!

THE latest from Mr. Haskell is that he intends to get that $600,000 out of W. R. Hearst, if it takes him 600 years, b'gosh!

NEW YORK, Ohio, and Indiana being perfectly safe for both parties, the list of doubtful states is not large enough to cause the slightest uneasiness.

IT is asserted that men are healthier and live longer than formerly. We are quite ready to believe it. In this country it is becoming the fashion for our hardest working and most strenuous public men to retain all their youthful vigor at the age of 50.

EVEN in Indiana, that home of intellect and center of literary culture, some misguided person is trying to make the voters believe that Mr. Taft said "a dollar is enough for a workingman." With such a transparent lie as that you can't fool the people of Indiana any part of the time.

THE man who is going to vote for Jake Kern has only one day in which to think up some good reason for the rash act.

IT may be as late as 11 o'clock tomorrow night before THE TRIBUNE'S searchlight flashes the signal announcing the certain election of Mr. Taft.

IT is hard to break the country of its confirmed habit of not electing Mr. Bryan president.

THIS country honors itself in honoring the memory of Benjamin Harrison.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has not been particularly friendly to me, but I don't lay it up against Taft.—John D. Rockefeller.

IN 1912, says Debs, the contest will be between socialism and capitalism. Does he think he can dispose of Mr. Gompers in this airy fashion?

ONCE again, Peerless Nebraskan, does the anti-injunction plank in your platform mean what Mr. Gompers says it does?

THE most charitable view is that Mr. Rockefeller, having no grudge against Taft, thought that the announcement of his support would be really a help.

THE Chicago and Milwaukee electric railway has been extended through to the station called Trouble.

IT is only necessary now for the Tennessee authorities to find witnesses that will testify against the night riders and to secure juries that will convict them.

FINDT CONNERS, Pat McCarren, Boss Murphy, and Tom Taggart, however, have not wavered in their allegiance to Bryan.

AS TO MR. BRYAN'S FINANCIAL VIEWS

As proof that the leaders of Bryanised democracy still maintain their 16 to 1 theories, a reader quotes the following from one of Mr. Willis Abbot's authoritative articles in THE TRIBUNE:

> We have had the silver issue, which split our forces in twain in the past. But that is an issue now relegated to the past, not because of the opinion of party leaders, but rather for the reason natural conditions have made it no longer important. This year we have only three great and dominant issues.

No proof is needed, indeed, beyond Mr. Bryan's own statement in his speech of acceptance that the coinage question had been taken out of politics by reason of "unexpected discoveries of gold."

Let no business man, nor any voter, doubt for an instant that Mr. Bryan and Mr. Bryan's personal associates and influential advisers would fail, if he is successful, to illuminate the national counsels with the financial folly of 1896.

As THE TRIBUNE has repeatedly pointed out during this campaign, free silver is an important issue.

The Sacred Ratio is not dead, but sleepeth.

THE GREAT COMPROMISER.

Mr. Bryan's firm determination to separate the enemies of the people from all connection with the government being accepted without question and without doubt, the imagination turns to a tear compelling and tragic picture of what will come to pass on March 4 in Washington if the results of Nov. 3 square with democratic hopes.

Pennsylvania avenue, down which marched the brigades of war worn federal soldiers before their muster out, will carry in review before the stern and immovable Commoner the serried and sacrificial ranks of another great army about to be disbanded, expatriated, and scattered to the four winds.

No one will wonder if the stern Commoner yield to his emotions as he watches this crowning act of self-abnegation and self-sacrifice on the part of the old guard of democracy. If a salty tear or two force a way down the cheeks of the commander and splash upon the reviewing stand it will be a tribute to the human feelings of a relentless purist and not a sign of weakness.

If, when the devoted Charles Murphy passes at the head of the devoted mercenaries of Tammany Hall, Mr. Bryan should turn aside his face to conceal his surging emotions, there will be none to sneer. Many another eye will be wet.

The sight of this battle stained army, ruined by its own victory, will tug powerfully at the sympathies. Unfortunate Fingy Conners, unhappy Murphy, sorrowful Tom Taggart, the erstwhile blooming but now tragic Roger Sullivan, the kindly but now blighted Urey Woodson, the Big and Little Tim Sullivans ingulfed by the same fate, the patriotic Haskell, the brilliant John Sharp Williams, the resourceful Joe Bailey—leaders of the most disinterested army ever collected under one banner—will march by with that ancient cry of heroism: "Hail, Cæsar, we who are about to die salute you."

Mr. Bryan may dry his eyes upon that sacred banner with its sacrifice-compelling legend: "Shall the People Rule?" A disagreeable necessity requires that this army of patriots be used in a cause which in succeeding must sacrifice its warriors.

A spirit of self-immolation, truly Japanese, fills the noble Murphy, animates the gallant Sullivans—Roger C. and the two Tims—and stirs the devoted Taggart. With the picture of this last review and this muster out before them as the inevitable consequence of their success, they inspire their veterans to fresh endeavor.

History, rich with the tales of devotion, has had to deal with nothing like this. One almost wishes that Mr. Bryan could find it possible to compromise with his convictions and could retain in posts of honor the brigade commanders to whom his victory, if victory he enjoy, must come.

One realizes, however, the hopelessness of this. The stern leader could not retain his hold upon the affections of his army if it were thought that he could yield to a human weakness. He may drop a tear or two, but the sacrifice cannot be staid.

Let Murphy console himself, and let Taggart, Sullivan, Bailey, Williams, Conners, et al. take heart. There are other lands where the people do not rule, other lands gasping under the tyrant's foot. Let Murphy carry his trained veterans of Tammany into the Balkans; let Taggart join the Young Turk party; let Roger C. betake himself to aid the struggling patriots of Persia, and let Bailey and Williams devote themselves to the cause of free government in Russia.

The old guard may be expatriated and yet find a world of usefulness.

THE DUMA.

The second session of the third duma has just opened. It made no greater stir than does the reassembling of parliament or congress. The duma has ceased to be a novelty or to be regarded as a miracle worker. If this duma had been as refractory and impracticable as its predecessors it would have shared their fate and probably would not have had a successor. Thanks to its politic course, the duma has become an established institution. It is a part of the recognized order of things, not to be swept away by any future autocrat.

The observer of Russian conditions cannot help taking notice of many disagreeable things. The bloody activity of courts martial is disheartening. One batch of executions follows another. But there is consolation in the thought that representative government is establishing itself and will gain strength and power little by little as the slow years crawl by and as an increasing number of Russians become qualified for the exercise of political power.

This duma did not do much in the way of legislation during its first session. It took it a little time to find itself—to learn how far it could go without meeting with a rebuff. It has found that out. The members have become convinced of the friendliness of M. Stolypin, the prime minister, and his desire to secure their cooperation. They have now had some parliamentary training and are much better fitted to deal with business in a practical way.

Considerable important business awaits them. There is the budget. The duma has not that control over taxes and appropriations which the legislative bodies of more advanced countries have, but the way for it gradually to acquire that control is by the study of fiscal questions by intelligent discussion with the ministers of the different items in the budget and by firm, though not offensive, opposition to any which are open to criticism. There is land legislation to be considered, and legislation to give that religious freedom which has been promised often, but never bestowed.

This session of the duma may not be made interesting by any spectacular incidents. It is to be hoped it will not be. The usefulness of the duma will be measured by its capacity for quiet, steady, intelligent work.

THE LOAN SHARKS.

The Illinois money lender cannot lawfully charge more than 7 per cent interest. The loan shark, having no respect for the law, manages by devices familiar to the craft to extort from 100 to 150 per cent. He is a beast of prey whose pestilent activity the legislature sought to restrict. But the legislation to that end which it enacted has failed to please a hypercritical Supreme court. So the loan shark is again in his glory.

There is another way of circumventing him which the Supreme court could not nullify. It is to offer to would-be borrowers on reasonable terms the accommodation for which he exacts cutthroat terms. Now, it must be admitted that 7 per cent is unreasonably low. The value of the security for a loan affects the interest rate, and an assignment of wages is precarious security. Death or discharge may make it worthless. While the loan shark's charges are outrageous, the legal limitation on interest, as far as it applies to loans on wages, does harm instead of good.

In order to give the people who are driven to pawnshops some protection against the rapacity of the ordinary pawnbroker the organization of Pawners' societies was authorized. They are permitted to charge enough to make a reasonable profit on capital invested, but not so much as pawnbrokers are allowed by law. If the legislature were to permit the organization of corporations to loan money on assignments of wages and chattel mortgages, allowing them to charge a fair rate of interest, much less than what the loan sharks demand, and if business men were to provide the capital for such corporations they would make a decent profit and be social benefactors. Wage earners who have to borrow would be liberated from the thraldom of the loan shark. He would have to cut his rates or go out of business.

Why should not the legislature enact such a law, placing these organizations, like the Pawners' societies, under state supervision? It would puzzle the Supreme court to find a pretext for holding the law unconstitutional.

THE SOLIDARITY OF THE NEGROES.

> "It is his opinion, and it is our opinion, that the political solidarity of the negroes works an injury to the race."—Col. Watterson.

The political solidarity of the negroes has been founded on the substantial services of the republican party to that race and upon the equally substantial consideration or disenfranchisement and social neglect and hostility represented by democracy. It would be the most astounding example of ingratitude and self-destroying folly in the records of politics if the republican solidarity of the negroes were now to be broken.

STORY TELLING.

Story telling is an art well deserving of encouragement. Its place in the life of children is unquestioned. The success of the plans of those public spirited individuals who have supported the movement for the story telling hour in the city library and in the assembly rooms of the small parks and playgrounds may bring satisfaction enough to them. At the same time they must understand that their efforts are appreciated by that large company of citizens who have regard for the pleasure and the happiness of the children.

When 500 or 600 young people hail and seize the opportunity to hear a skillful narrator tell once again the folk tales which have had their fascination for successive generations there can be no question of the desirability of maintaining and developing the interesting work. It will be a satisfaction to many parents that children in a half dozen neighborhoods are to have the benefit of this praiseworthy and useful effort toward a more complete and happy child life in Chicago.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Cause and Effect.

"So they caught the fleeing robber, did they?"

"Yes, after a hot chase."

"And he broke down and confessed?"

"No; it was his automobile that broke down. He merely confessed."

Where It Falls.

"Well, what do you think of indoor baseball?"

"It will do well enough as a pastime, but it isn't a game. It'll never develop any national heroes."

Both Guesses Wrong.

Algy—"But I weary you, Miss Capricum. I'm a great talker."

Miss Capricum—"On the contrary, Mr. Featherstop, you don't weary me at all, and I find your small talk very diverting."

Literary Note.

Goodman Gonrong—"You're goin' to write a book? Sufferin' Moses! You?"

Saymold Storey—"Yep. Some day I'm goin' to write the Ortobiography of a Travelin' Sociologist."

Hopelessly Out of Style.

"Peter," said Mrs. Pneuritch, "I want you to have that roof taken off our garage and one of a different kind put on."

"What for?" demanded Mr. Pneuritch.

"What's the matter with it?"

"I heard an architect say the other day that it's a hip roof. Everybody knows that hips are out of style now."

Polishing Him Off.

"What was the cause of that fearful racket in the other room a little while ago?"

"Some of the boys were putting a whirlwind finish on a campaign liar."

Medieval Etiquette.

Never praise the result of your cook's labors or press your guests to eat whether they like or not. Never criticise your host's dinner unfavorably, even if it be badly cooked. Pass all these things over in silence. Do not give dogs your bones under the table, or feed the cat, or encourage animals to jump on the table. Above all, do not lick your plate; it is an act that ill becomes a cat, let alone a gentleman.—Erasmus.

NEW YORK is a great camping ground in times of peace for those soldiers of fortune and well born adventurers whom the English novelist, Henry Seton Merriman, describes so graphically under the name of "The Vultures," and it would be interesting to know how many of them have sailed for Europe since the commencement of the present crisis in the Balkans, hastening to Belgrade, Sofia, Cettinje, and Constantinople, with the object of being on hand if any war breaks out.

No one, not even the inhabitants of the countries immediately concerned in the imbroglio, are scanning more eagerly the newspapers day by day for the latest information about the situation than these men, who will be cruelly disappointed if rulers, statesmen, and diplomats succeed in averting a conflict and in preserving peace. For in that event the journey of these modern counterparts of the ancient Condottieri from America to Europe will have been to no purpose, and the money spent thereon merely wasted—money which they have found it exceedingly difficult to obtain.

Formerly all the world was open to these soldiers of fortune. But nowadays their offers of service are frowned upon by most of the civilized powers. Nor did the showing which they made under the Boer flag during the last war in South Africa tend to improve their reputation, the general consensus of opinion, even among the Afro-Dutch for whom they fought, being to the effect that they did more harm than good. Certain it is that none of them, with the exception, perhaps, of the French Col. de Villebois-Mareuil, achieved any lasting distinction or even suggested any favorable comparison with the Boer leaders.

Germany, Austria, Italy, and Great Britain have no use whatsoever for alien mercenaries. France and Holland still continue to enroll them in the noncommissioned ranks of their so-called "foreign legions," which are employed for the kind of work for which the governments of these two countries do not care to use their own countrymen. Russia will only consent to grant commissions in her army to aliens when the latter are of royal or otherwise illustrious birth. Roumania and Bulgaria have such splendidly organized, well equipped, and perfectly trained armies that they do not care for the services of foreigners, particularly after their sorry experiences in connection with men of this kind in their war of liberation thirty-two years ago.

Greece still shivers at the recollection of the mercenaries who took service under her flag in her last war with Turkey and who, under the command of Ricciotti Garibaldi, did infinitely more damage to friend than to foe and behaved in such a manner that their presence worked more havoc in the districts which they infested than the Turkish invader, and it at last became necessary for the Greek government to virtually expel them from the kingdom. In Turkey, at any rate until new laws are inaugurated, the army is closed to them, since the privilege of serving under the Turkish flag is restricted to Moslems, except in the case of those foreign officers who have been loaned by their respective governments to the sublime porte.

Japan absolutely declined to accept the numerous offers which she received of the services of foreign soldiers of fortune during her war with Russia, and, indeed, the only field that remains open to them is in the Latin republics of Central and South America and at Belgrade, where the government of King Peter, utterly demoralized by the presence at its head of the regicides of his predecessor, cannot afford to display any squeamishness. But the Servian government has no money.

In one word, the reign of the soldier of fortune, who played so important a rôle in the middle ages and even in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, contributing even a fair share to the romance of the infinitely more prosaic and matter of fact nineteenth century, seems to have come to an end, and they have no place in modern warfare.

Count Rabes Levetzau, who has an American wife and who until a few weeks ago was minister of foreign affairs of Denmark, has been guilty of a piece of indiscretion which has caused keen annoyance not only at the court of his own king but also at those of the kaiser and of King Haakon. In fact, the revelations ascribed to him of secrets acquired during his term of office are of such a nature as to mar his prospects of ever being included in another Danish cabinet or to his being employed in a diplomatic capacity. They have destroyed all of his promising chances of being appointed Danish minister in London on the retirement of M. de Bille, and render unfavorable the aspirations in that direction of Constantine Brun, who sails on Tuesday for Europe.

The piece of information given out by Count Raben is to the effect that at the time of the separation of Norway from Sweden the kaiser was anxious to place upon the throne of the latter country one of his two brothers-in-law, either Duke Ernest Guenther of Schleswig - Holstein Augustenburg, only brother of the empress, or else Duke Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein Glucksburg, who has married the kaiserin's sister and one of whose daughters married a fortnight ago Emperor William's fourth son, Prince Augustus William of Prussia.

Both of these dukes include, like the grand duke of Oldenburg, the king of Denmark, and the emperor of Russia, that of "heir of Norway" among their many titles, these titles representing certain shadowy ancestral rights dating from olden times. Norwegian opinion, however, was pronounced against a German prince, especially one so closely allied to the kaiser, the leanings of Norway having always been more in the direction of France, of Russia, and of England than towards Germany, which country, however, is united by bonds of the closest sympathy with Sweden. Nor would any one of these foreign powers have been willing to see one of the dukes of Schleswig-Holstein reigning at Christiania.

According to Count Raben Levetzau, he visited Prince Bülow and informed him that it was either a case of Prince Charles of Denmark being elected as king of Norway or of the proclamation of a republic. Rather than see a republic in Norway the kaiser withdrew the candidature of his two brothers-in-law and submitted to that of Prince Charles of Denmark, who now reigns as King Haakon. The Norwegians are greatly disgusted by the revelations of Count Raben Levetzau, as they have boasted all along that the question of a republic was settled by a vote of the people, without any foreign influence or interference.

Count Raben's wife is a daughter of the late Charles Moulton of Albany, N. Y., and her mother was a Miss Greenough of Boston. When Mrs. Moulton found herself without resources after the death of Charles Moulton in a railroad accident at Philadelphia she endeavored to put the superb voice which she possessed to a practical use and made her début in London on the concert stage. But notwithstanding her qualifications, she failed to achieve success, and it was not until she encountered and married H. de Hegermann Lindencrone, formerly Danish minister at Washington and now King Frederick's envoy at the court of Berlin, that she was placed above want. Her daughter by Charles Moulton became a great favorite with her stepfather and in course of time married from his house the Danish nobleman who, until the cabinet crisis the other day, resulting from the dishonesty of Minister of Justice Alberti, held the office of minister of foreign affairs at Copenhagen.

A sister of Charles Moulton is Countess Paul Hatzfeldt, widow of the former German ambassador to the court of St. James and mother of Count Herman Hatzfeldt, who is now the able and popular chargé d'affaires of the German empire at Washington.

Rule of Debt.

Why is it considered a sign of good breeding to be in debt? The man who pays his tailor by return of post wins respect neither from his friends nor from the tradesman who receives his check. For some subtle reason his patronage lacks "éclat," and he is never so well served as the spendthrift, who contemplates a sheaf of bills with equanimity as the most natural thing in the world.—Jewish Chronicle, Johannesburg.

Persistent Lover.

It has been learned that Artie Appleton hangs around his girl so constantly all day that her real mission to Kansas City last week was not to buy a suit, as she said, but to get a chance to wash her head.—Atchison (Kas.) Globe.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

[Communications for this department must not exceed 300 words.—Ed. Tribune.]

[No communications unaccompanied by the name of the writer—not necessarily for publication—will be published.]

[From the Peoria Herald-Transcript.]

Sometimes it is pleasant to write letters to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and then again sometimes it isn't. THE TRIBUNE prints a communication in yesterday's issue and heads it "An Amusing Letter from an Ass."

OPINION OF DENEEN BY FORMER JUDGE.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—About twenty years ago, when I was presiding in the Criminal court of this county, there appeared before me almost daily in his professional capacity in the defense of criminals a young man with clean face, earnest and persistent in the performance of his duties to his clients, and who resorted to no low, mean, or dishonest tricks. I watched him so long as I remained in that court as well as in his practice afterward and never saw in him the first act that was inconsistent with the strictest integrity. It will require something more than political animosity to convince me that this young man, now Gov. Charles S. Deneen, is otherwise than strictly honest.

I notice that he is criticised severely for having accepted a large sum as fees when he was state's attorney. I believe he never received a dollar of such fees the correctness of which had not been adjudicated by the County court, where the law provided that it must be investigated.

The present democratic candidate for state's attorney, Jacob J. Kern, one of Mr. Deneen's predecessors as state's attorney, I think it will be found, accepted fees exactly as Mr. Deneen did and under the same law.

This note is written without solicitation and without the knowledge of the governor or of his friends, but as a simple act of justice.

O. H. HORTON.

ADMIRES CANNON'S COURAGEOUSNESS.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I fail to see the justification of the fight made on Joseph Cannon by the would-be reformers simply because he did what he thought was his duty, and he did it fearlessly. He has without a doubt proved himself to be one of the most able and courageous men who ever sat in the house of representatives, and as a parliamentarian he has no superior. He ought to be sent back by the most flattering vote ever given a candidate of recent years. THE TRIBUNE is doing a great thing in advocating his reélection. I shall take great pleasure in casting my vote for him Tuesday morning next.

JULIUS N. AVENDORPH.

OLD SOLDIER OPPOSES STEVENSON.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have heard of a few ex-soldiers in Chicago who are talking about voting for Stevenson for governor, and as one who journeyed through the late unpleasantness from 1861 to 1865 I am a little surprised to find any man wearing the copper button that would so far forget himself as to cast a ballot for one who has had the reputation of the democratic candidate. I do not intend to mention any of many statements that have been heralded to and fro in the newspapers, but the action of the veterans of the civil war who knew him should go a long way with the boys in blue. McCutcheon's cartoon of the boys marching to the front tells the whole story to those who fought and bled for their country.

ROY O. WEST AND CITY TAXES.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Allow me as a taxpayer in the city of Chicago to state that a number of letters published in the press in regard to the chairmanship of the board of review are misleading. Taxpayers must remember that this board is not the taxing board; and I challenge any taxpayer in the city to state that he went before the board of review prior to Aug. 1 in any year since Roy O. West became chairman and that he did not get his taxes properly adjusted. Give Roy O. West fair play; he is a good man, he is an honest man, and the taxpayer who does not vote for him on Nov. 3 will be doing himself an injustice.

BERNARD J. COGAN.

DOCTORS LIKE POLICIES OF DENEEN.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In recent issues of THE TRIBUNE have appeared letters and interviews relative to the attitude of the medical profession of Illinois toward Gov. Deneen. It has been stated that the profession is opposed to Mr. Deneen because of his having vetoed the appropriation for the purchase outright by the state of the present medical department of the university.

This statement is untrue and merely an expression of individual opinion. As a member of the faculty of the medical department of the state university I am in pretty close touch with the situation and have no hesitancy in stating that the political sympathies of the majority of the faculty will not be influenced in the least at the coming election by the governor's veto of the bill aforesaid.

The members of the faculty will vote as their political consciences and usual political affiliations dictate. To my personal knowledge, the profession throughout the state has in general expressed only the warmest commendation of Gov. Deneen's policies.

I take pleasure in stating that in my opinion he is the first governor within my recollection who has endeavored to elevate our public institutions to a high scientific and ethical plane. He has appointed some medical men to office whose names alone are sufficient evidence of this, and has appointed them without political fear or favor. Gov. Deneen is a student of social conditions and is abreast of the times. As for the assertion that certain men are opposed to Gov. Deneen because he by his veto prevented a losing venture being foisted on the state, it can be speedily disposed of. It is a lie, nothing more nor less.

It was conceived in the narrow minds of pinheaded homunculi, whose egotism has led them to suppose that a well organized medical department of the state university would come in competition with mushroom, fly-by-night colleges (sic) of their own.

These creatures are of the same kidney as those who have combated every attempt made by advanced medical thinkers to drive quackery off the map. A well organized medical department of our state university is dreaded by these gentry almost as much as are our state board examinations for licenses to practice.

Fortunately Gov. Deneen has too much hard sense to be misled by the spitting of toads in the pathway of progress.

O. FRANK LYDSTON, M. D.

MIGHT LOSE HIS GOOD SALARY.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Replying to man who is 85 years of age and works for a salary far better, he states, than the average man gets, I ask: Who made it possible for you to earn that salary? The republican party, of course, and it has helped many others. Why is it that a laboring man today gets from $3 to $5 a day, when under the Cleveland democratic administration he got but $1.50 a day, and many an empty dinner pail?

Who built up the country, built the railroads, all the large factories, and made it possible for every man like yourself to earn a princely salary? The republican party, of course. I will bet a big apple that if Mr. Bryan should be elected your salary will be reduced 25 per cent within twelve months after his election.

Of course we want high tariff so that you and thousands of others can retain your position and keep our factories busy, instead of purchasing abroad and sending our money out of the country. To protect the manufacturer is to protect the workingman, and we cannot help one without the other.

If you will give one sober thought to what the republican party has done for you and millions of others, you will vote for Mr. Taft, who has proved himself to be a leader among men, and a safe man to be at the head of this nation.

J. B. MCKEAGUE.

Perspective Is Needed.

In our own time details overpower us; men's badges and buttons seem to grow larger and larger as in a horrible dream. To study humanity in the present is like studying a mountain with a magnifying glass; to study it in the past is like studying it through a telescope.—Gilbert K. Chesterton.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

"SCHOOL DAYS"

A Musical Affair in Three Acts

BY

EDWARDS AND GARDENIER.

Presented in the Great Northern Theater, Chicago, by the Gus Edwards Company, Nov. 1, 1908. The Cast:

Biff Dunson	Milfred Herrick
Carl Dachsbund	Daniel Murphy
Boston Perry	Gregory Kelly
Tommy Tatters	Joe Keno
Toney	Nat Baker
Freshy	Agnes Lynn
Monnie	Janet Priest
Izzy Levi	Herman Timberg
Miss Take	Lilly Dean Hart

A rack on which to expose songs written by Gus Edwards, an earnest worker in that branch of amusements, is "School Days," presented in the Great Northern theater yesterday to the hilariously expressed joy of two audiences that packed the place.

It professes to have a plot dealing with a long lost daughter, a father, a locket, and the papers, but it is an elusive plot and hard to follow. Therefore it is work for a detective and not a busy reviewer.

In the second act, which appears to be the principal part of the entertainment, there is a schoolroom scene. On one side of the stage are the eighteen girls of the chorus and a few extras. On the other side an equal number of boys. In between, the interrogating teacher.

"Nonnie," says teacher, "what animal supplies your mother's fur?"

"My father," answers Nonnie.

There are many like this; none better, several worse. The audience fairly howled at them. A part of the comedy is unsavory, seeing that it circles a German scholar's lunch basket containing limburger cheese. At stated intervals the action is halted to permit the introduction of a song, and following the song innumerable encores. Most of the songs are tuneful and are given forth in barrel organ fashion and barrel organ measure. Of those we heard, "The Calendar of Love" and "Sunbonnet Sue" were the most popular.

The "School Days" company has evidently been recruited from a New York agency, where stage children register. Occasionally a tried veteran is discovered cavorting beneath a juvenile makeup, but the number of youngsters is astonishing. Likewise disconcerting, seeing that they yell like demons and threaten the tympani of their friends in front.

Two of the principals are featured, Janet Priest and Herman Timberg. Miss Priest may be a very good and bright young woman, who formerly lived in Minneapolis and wrote pieces about actors for the papers. One day one of the actresses whom she criticised dared her to come upon the stage and show her how it should be done. She did, and since then she has continued acting. She was here with Richard Carle when "The Maid and the Mummy" was his play, and in "School Days" she appears as the schoolgirl heroine, to whom the locket and the papers refer, and, being a natural little actress, she does it cleverly. We do not remember Herman. It may be we never saw him before. He threatens to become a Hebrew comedian when he grows up. Growing children always did irritate us. One of the older members of the company is Joe Keno, a good acrobatic dancer, and the best singing is done by Agnes Lynn, Isabel Crawford, and a fat youth named Milfred Berrick.

Carle at the Auditorium.

There is one good thing about "Mary's Lamb." Its fleece may not be as white as snow, but it is bound to continue faithful to Richard Carle. Wherever he goes it will always amble after him. Richard is really the most important incident connected with the history and performance of "Mary's Lamb." He saved its life.

This good musical farce began a second Chicago engagement in the Auditorium last night, and the huge theater was all but filled with people. Carle was in fine fettle, and those who know Carle, and think him amusing at all, know how good he can be when his voice is not wandering 'round the corner for him and his straying thoughts are not out automobiling. He has a manner, has Carle, and a method. He offers a certain brand of farcical comedy of which the elaborated sentence, the pensive soliloquy, and the pungent jest are features, and no one can serve the same brand as well as he.

"Mary's Lamb" was a French farce before it became an American musical comedy, and this combination is a good one.

The cast has been changed and strengthened since Carle was here before. Julia Ralph is now the threatening Miranda, and Julia is a good actress. Nellie Brewster is the prima donna. Nellie sings right out, and sings well. Nina Davis is a dancer, and Nina is graceful. Cecilia Rhoda plays the charmer who caused Leander Lamb to stray from the fold, and Cecilia is the young woman who refused to wear tights for one manager, was discharged, brought suit, and won the case. She did not display here excuses last evening.

"Right of Way" in McVicker's.

In McVicker's theater last night Guy Standing and Theodore Roberts presented "The Right of Way," and the McVickerites saw what is perhaps the best acting they have seen or will see this season. This particular dramatized novel fits excellently into the McVicker's scheme of things theatrical, being intensely interesting, vigorously dramatic, and always romantic and sentimentally appealing.

Standing has every qualification demanded by "Beauty" Steele, and Roberts, trained and finished character star that he is, literally draws blunt old Portugals' hide on with his make up, and makes him live and breathe through the most momentous scenes of the story. In contrast to these two fine drawings is the petite héroine, daintily and effectively played by May Buckley. This trio was greatly admired by the crowd last night, and the applause was prolonged and insistent.

BURNS MANTLE.

Baccarat in German.

The first American performance of "Baccarat" by Henri Bernstein, the prominent French author, was given last evening by the German company at Powers'. Bernstein's "The Thief" has held the center place in theatrical activity in New York continuously for over a year, and any product from his pen now is awaited with more than usual interest.

"Baccarat" is a powerful play, dealing with conditions which are not prevalent in the United States—although there be certain preclimmers of impending evil who insist we are acquiring them rapidly. That such conditions do obtain in France is undeniable, and the impressiveness of the Bernstein drama there is easily understood, even though time may show that it will not make so strong an appeal to American theatergoers.

As the title suggests, gambling is the subject around which the play is built. The vice of the card table is not made active in the play, but the results of indulgence in it. Robert von Chacenoy, the last representative of a titled French family, has made gambling the end and aim of his life and the means of leading that life as a gentleman. He has been successful in the main, and has won a place for himself in good society. He has been intrusted with the representation and management of a large racing stable, and has carried the undertaking to prosperity. The stable has been sold and 900,000 francs placed in bank to his credit, he to turn it over to his employers. He in a single night has lost 800,000 of this sum at baccarat, a wild mercantile frenzy for gambling having made him irresponsible. He finds himself the next morning not only bankrupt but a criminal, and after three days of vain seeking for aid he comes on Grand Prix evening to the house of Baron Lebourg, planning there to take farewell of the baron's daughter Helene and then flee from Paris and France. He and Helene have been lovers for three years, but their relationship has been concealed from every one and especially from Helene's husband, the Count of Brechebel, a miserable excuse for a man whom she married to satisfy her suddenly rich parents' ambition for social prominence and a title in the family.

Robert ultimately tells Helene of his misappropriation of the funds, and also of his determination to flee. She insists upon going with him, and threatens to expose to the world her love for him if he will not consent to take her. He has to consent, and she, unknown to him, sets herself the task of trying to raise the money he needs. The selling of her jewels requires more time than is at disposal, and she appeals to her father for the money. He in a scene of big dramatic power wrenches out of her the whole truth of Robert's misdoings, and then threatens to have him arrested. Then she confesses the relationship she has borne to Robert for three years and the father finds himself compelled to help her if scandal is to be averted. The father hesitates, however, and Helene succeeds in securing the money by other means. She arrives at Robert's rooms, however, just after he has talked with her father and arranged a plan for her return home without suspicion of scandal resting upon her. She does not find her lover in his dressing room and goes to the door of his sleeping room just as a shot is fired with which the young fellow ends his life.

The play is not a pleasant one, but it is admirably constructed, is filled with effective light and shade, is held in the atmosphere of social elegance and refinement, and contains several situations of big dramatic power. The second act between Helene and her father is intense and reaches a telling climax, and the last act, although talky, has a strong ending.

The performance was a beautifully balanced and adequate one. Mr. Bolten played Robert with all the fine understanding, the effective shading, and the true aristocracy of manner which it requires. Miss Kramer added to her laurels by a splendid portrayal of Helene. Mr. Duschak showed his quality—and it is of worth—as the father, and Miss Beringer, Mr. Hahn, Mr. Sprotte, and Mr. Marx contributed work which added much to the ensemble of the excellent performance.

Two Recitals.

Yesterday was a two recital Sunday—one of the kind that comes every time anybody besides Mr. Neumann decides to proffer a musical entertainment. He has reached the point in his purveying of musical nourishment where every week's first day throughout the season is necessary for him to place before his patrons the lavish entertainment supply he provides. There are other impresarios in the field, however. These must of necessity have their chance, and a troubling up of recitals is therefore unavoidable.

This season a new promoter in the person of Charles L. Wagner has entered the field, and yesterday at the Studebaker inaugurated a series of musical entertainments which he has outlined for the season. He presented Arthur Hartman, the violinist, and Mme. Olitzka, the contralto, in joint program. Mr. Hartman had not been heard here before, the arrangements made a season or so ago for his appearance having been canceled at the last moment owing to some indisposition on his part. He came forward yesterday with the Saint-Saëne Concerto in B minor, the Fugue in A minor for violin alone of Bach, and a group consisting of an "Air" by Goldmark, his own transcription of the Debussy "Il pleure dans mon cœur," and the Mazurka by Zarzycki.

I heard him only in the first two selections and in the two encores which he gave after the Fugue. In these he showed himself the possessor of a technic which is complete enough to enable him to do anything and everything that the present day literature of the violin demands—which means that he is equipped to the full virtuoso standard. There is nothing that seems difficult for him, and he performed all the technical feats encountered—and they were numerous and considerable—with entire ease and high finish. Technically all appears to be at his command, and interpretatively there seems to have been acquired by him all that good musicianship and serious study can give. He did not disclose himself, however, as a player of any especial temperamental warmth or emotional positiveness. It all was playing that was finely polished, exact musically, and respect commanding, but not playing that roused to great enthusiasm or particularly moved. The audience, which was of a heterogeneous composition, was lavish in its applause and recalled the violinist repeatedly, winning from him several encores.

Mme. Olitzka was pleasantly remembered for her work here with the San Carlo Opera company last season. She came forward in a new rôle—that of a singer of lieder. Her voice is one of true contralto timbre and therefore rare in this day of mezzo soprano. It is a voice necessarily limited in the range of its color possibilities, and just a suggestion

MANY AT B. M. Z. CHARITY BALL.

Hundreds Aid Benefit for Orthodox Jewish Home for Aged.

PROVES A SOCIAL SUCCESS.

All Have Good Time on Dancing Floor and Patronizing Booths.

The annual "B. M. Z." charity ball, given for the benefit of the Orthodox Jewish Home for the Aged, was held last night at the Coliseum. Nearly the entire supporting membership of the home and hundreds of sympathizers gathered to make the occasion a successful one from a social standpoint and with profit to the seventy-five beneficiaries of the home who benefit in direct ratio to the popularity of the function.

The guests came late and early arrivals nearly lost themselves in the great floor spaces, but before midnight there was none too much room, and Bernard Baumgarden, chairman of the ball committee, expressed his pleasure at the excellent showing. This, Mr. Baumgarden said, augured well for the plan to make the ball a purely social event as soon as the sustaining membership of the home association becomes large enough to make the institution independent of other aid. Next year's ball may be conducted on this basis.

All Have a Good Time.

The stream of guests was welcomed by the reception committee, headed by Herman Schaver, and conspicuous in its rosettes. Much diversion appeared in the decorations of the room, which seemed ample and carefully designed to remove any oppressive sense of vastness which otherwise would cling to the room. Everybody danced, under the leadership of Sidney Kahnweiler, chief marshal, and everybody had chances to buy all sorts of things from girls and matrons for the benefit of the cause and the pleasure of the purchaser.

Among the popular booths were the candy booth, presided over by Miss Beatrice Falbenstein; the lemonade booth, in charge of Mrs. A. Tupler, and the flower booth, which, under the direction of Mrs. H. L. Frankel, did its best to decorate every one.

Many Occupy Boxes.

The box holders were:

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Kiefard, Dr. and Mrs. J. Ginsberg.
Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Wolfsohn, Mr. and Mrs. H. Weiner, The Beaconsfield club.
Mr. and Mrs. David T. Lyon, Independent Order Western Star.
Mr. and Mrs. Mark T. Lyon, Isaac Lieberman, Mr. and Mrs. L. Rosenfeld, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zwelg.
Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Baumgarden, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Schiff, Mrs. Joseph Phillipson.
Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sachath, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Rosenwald.
Mr. and Mrs. Abel Davis, Mr. and Mrs. L. Klein.
Mr. and Mrs. A. Margolin, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Hecht.

In former years about $20,000 has been realized from the ball. It is thought the amount this year will be as large or larger.

PEACE FLIES FROM THE D. A. R.; FIGHT DUE AT STATE MEETING.

Minority in Chicago Chapter Decides to Oppose All Candidates of Majority at Jacksonville Conference.

The domestic strife in the Chicago chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be carried to the state conference at Jacksonville tomorrow.

The party in power, the party which brought to dissension by giving card parties for prizes, will go to the conference with candidates for almost all the offices to be filled. Those opposed to this policy will have no ticket, but are expected to oppose the candidates and the plans of the majority. They expect a considerable accession of strength from the delegates from the other parts of the state, who are said to be more puritanical than their Chicago sisters.

There has been no official action by the Chicago chapter in the interests of any one's candidacy, but it is generally understood the candidates who will be supported by the majority are Mrs. Matthew T. Scott of Bloomington for president general of the national organization; Mrs. Frederick W. Becker, president of the Chicago College club, for vice president general from Illinois; Mrs. John C. Ames of Streator for regent of Illinois, and Mrs. Sain Welty of Bloomington for vice regent.

It is understood all these candidates will be strongly opposed, though only one opposition candidate has been named, Mrs. Charles Hickox of Springfield for vice president general of the national organization from Illinois. Mrs. J. Ellsworth Groes, regent of the chapter, is said to be supporting Mrs. Hickox's candidacy.

Hints for Reducing.

If there could possibly be any choice between being thin or fat, the preference would probably be with the lesser amount of flesh. The thin woman can add all sorts of ruffles and fluffy effects to make her look a little stouter, but the fat woman—alas!—she can do nothing to take away from her appearance.

Dieting will usually work wonders, if taken sensibly, but the majority of women either diet so strictly as to injure their health, or else they do not diet consistently. In connection with diet, there are a few exercises that can be taken. There is one American actress, famous for her beauty, who keeps her flesh down by rolling. She dons a kimono and then she lies down on the floor and rolls over and over for half an hour or so. Of course, this isn't the most comfortable thing one could do, but it is effective and one will soon be able to do it easily. Another favorite method of reducing flesh is to cover a rolling pin with a layer of flannel and then roll the flesh of the entire body with this.

But the best exercise of all and one which is the most popular is skipping rope. This exercise is more like play than work. Many pretty steps can be learned, so as to make it interesting, and if some one will play a catchy little air on the piano you will find yourself looking forward to your half hour of exercise with pleasure, instead of dread. All exercise taken for reducing flesh must be taken violently enough to induce perspiration.

One Cause of Impure Breath.

A common cause of an unpleasant breath is dyspepsia. Girls who suffer from sick headache often have this affliction. Among the causes of this disturbance are overwork, sedentary habits, hurry, worry, and a practice of bolting one's meals.

IN THE SEWING ROOM

Well Fitting Collars.

Many of the new high collars are made with a curved lower edge. The best fitting collars, however, are those made straight on the bottom. They may be shaped as one wishes on top. In making these high collars, which follow the line of the hair in the back and almost touch the ears and are then curved out under the chin, the natural impulse of most women is to make these collars too high. The best way to secure good results in making these collars is to make a newspaper pattern, altering and changing until it fits. Measure around the neck and cut a piece of paper this length and four inches or so high. Then measure the heights of the collar in the center of the front, measuring from the base of the collar to where the head joins the neck, and make this on the paper; then measure the distance from the base of the collar in front to the beginning of the hair, and measure the distance from behind the ear to the bottom of the collar, and mark these measurements on the paper and cut the top of the collar according to these. By trying the collar on and trimming it wherever it may be too high, a perfect fitting collar can be secured.

Glove Fastenings for Dresses.

The patent fasteners from wornout and discarded gloves may be utilized by cutting them from the gloves, leaving enough of the kid attached to be fastened on skirt bands and plackets. These can be sewed on by machine under a fly lap and they will last longer than buttons or hooks and eyes. These make ideal fasteners for belts.

Soup Recipes.

PUREE OF LIMA BEANS.—Cook one can of lima beans in a pint of salted water, adding a tablespoonful of grated onion, a bay leaf, a blade of mace, and three whole cloves. When reduced to a pulp press through a fine sieve. Return to the fire and stir in two coffee cupfuls of milk, season with half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. Thicken with one tablespoonful of butter and one of flour rubbed to a paste, letting it just reach the boiling point to cook the flour. Serve at once with tiny crescents of fried bread.

BLACK BEAN SOUP.—Soak one pint of beans over night; next morning drain off the water, cook them with cold water and bring to the boiling point, drain and again throw away the water. Then add to the beans two quarts of water and boil one hour. In the meantime prepare an onion by sticking it with half a dozen cloves and at the end of the hour add it to the soup with a bay leaf, one sliced parsnip, and a little celery salt; cook for another hour and then press through a colander. Return the mixture to the fire, adding a tablespoonful of butter, and if too thick add a little boiling water. Put into the soup tureen two chopped hardboiled eggs, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and one of Worcestershire sauce. Pour in the puree, season with salt and pepper and serve with croutons.

CREAM OF SWEET POTATO SOUP.—This southern delicacy is made by peeling four sweet potatoes, covering with boiling water and cooking five minutes, after which they should be drained and the water thrown away. Then cover them with one pint of boiling water, adding a slice of onion, a stalk of chopped celery, a bay leaf, and a pinch of thyme. Cover and cook until the potatoes are tender, then press them through a colander.

Add one quart of milk and turn into the double boiler; rub together two tablespoonfuls of butter and flour; add to the soup and cook until smooth; season with a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne and strain through a fine sieve. Reheat and stir in two tablespoonfuls of thick cream. Serve with tiny farmer squares.

Cheese.

CHEESE AND NUT SANDWICHES.—Chop pecans, hickory, or English walnuts; mix the nuts; mix the nuts into an equal bulk of cream or Neufchatel cheese, add a dash of paprika and use in spreading bread prepared for sandwiches. A heart leaf of lettuce dipped in French dressing may be placed between the two pieces of bread.

CHEESE RELISH.—Cut one-quarter pound of cheese into slices, put into a frying-pan, pour over it one large cup of milk into which has been mixed one-half teaspoon of dry mustard and a pinch of salt; add a piece of butter the size of a butternut; stir all the time. Have ready three Boston crackers rolled, sprinkle them into the above mixture; when thoroughly mixed turn into a warm dish and serve. Nice for luncheon.

CHEESE PATTIES.—One pound chopped cheese, one-half cup butter, two and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoonful cayenne pepper, one teaspoon salt, two eggs, beaten thoroughly. Mix butter, flour, and cheese thoroughly, then add other ingredients. Roll out about as thick as pie crust, cut out, and bake in a hot oven to a golden brown.

SCALLOPED CHEESE.—Take four slices of bread, remove the crust, and butter each slice and put in a buttered baking dish in layers. Then chop one-quarter pound cheese and sprinkle over it some salt and pepper. Mix four well beaten eggs with three cups of milk and pour over the bread and cheese. Bake in a hot oven as you would bread pudding.

MAROONS PRAISED IN ALL QUARTERS.

Stagg's Football Machine Now Looms as Logical Western Champion.

OTHERS OF GREAT GAMES.

Wisconsin Victorious by Mere Luck, While Michigan Shows to Advantage.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Defeating Minnesota by the decisive score of 29 to 0 last Saturday, Chicago now looms up as the logical western champion. Nothing but praise for the Maroons and Coach Stagg was heard in football circles yesterday, and victories over Cornell and Wisconsin, the remaining teams on the schedule, were prophesied on all sides.

That Stagg has done wonders with the small number of men eligible for the varsity team was the opinion of every football follower who witnessed the struggle last Saturday. Such a whirlwind attack, intermingled with forward passes, onside kicks, and the best formations of the old rules, was the most bewildering that any team has yet presented under the modern game, and the possibilities of this style of play were clearly shown.

The precision and quickness with which the complicated plays were snapped off also came in for considerable comment. Many a formation was started before the Gophers had an opportunity to size it all up, and many times they were caught unawares. Not once were the Maroons fouled by a play, and they met every attack of the northerners with deadly effect. Minnesota was expected to gain through Chicago's line, and it did, but not consistently enough to cross the goal line.

No Letup in Work.

Coach Stagg will not relax in the work a bit, as he is set on winning from Cornell and Wisconsin, and especially is ambitious to win from the easterners on Nov. 14. To accomplish this result he sent De Tray, assistant coach at Chicago this year, to Ithaca to get a line on Cornell's play in its game with Pennsylvania State. As Cornell's is the next game on the Maroons' schedule new plays will have to be learned and mastered in two weeks. Stagg is too wise to expect to win from the Ithacans with the same plays which were used against Minnesota with the knowledge that three Cornell men were in the stands watching the Maroon's attack and style of defense.

While the Chicago-Minnesota game was the real surprise in western football circles because of the size of the score, there also were other contests which have a bearing on the western title.

Wisconsin, after its game against Marquette, which the Badgers won by one of the hardest kind of battles, does not look up as an eleven which is capable of defeating Chicago. The valley of the Badgers may be whitened in playing a team of the strength of Marquette one week before a game of such importance as that with Minnesota. Wisconsin, in playing the Milwaukee eleven, had everything to lose and nothing to gain, and it had to show some of the best formations to win the verdict. Naturally enough there were encomiums from Minnesota and Chicago sixths up the plays, and the Badgers will experience a reversal in making the same ground with plays used in last Saturday's contest.

Mell the Badgers' Mosss.

Marquette was known to be strong, and it took the best the Badgers had to win. But for the drop kicking of Moll, who scored a field goal in the final minutes of play, Wisconsin would have succumbed to a 6 to 5 defeat. Another thing which must be taken into consideration is the condition of the players. Some of them are bound to show the effects of such a hard battle and will not be in the best of shape next Saturday.

The struggle between Wisconsin and Minnesota on Saturday is a great contest. The Gophers, playing on their own ground will strike like demons to avenge their defeat at the hands of Chicago, and a victory over the Badgers will not make their standing so bad when the final reckoning of the standing of the clubs is made.

Wisconsin will fight to stay in the championship race, and a victory over Minnesota will let them face the Maroons without a defeat. As the game with Chicago will be played in Madison, it should cross a big factor in the contest. Wisconsin must win decisively from Minnesota to stand a chance with Stagg's machine, and the result of next Saturday's contest between the old rivals will better determine the result of the struggle between the Badgers and Maroons.

A welcome surprise to western football enthusiasts was the reversal of form shown by Michigan in its game with Vanderbilt. The Wolverines, for the first time this year, showed a resemblance of the machinelike play which has characterized Michigan football teams in the past. Although the line's share of the scoring was done by Allerdice, the versatile half back, it was the team play of other members of the eleven which made his scores possible.

Wolverines in Great Form.

Heavy, concentrated attacks, varied by forward passes and outside kicks, coupled with the splendid kicking of Allerdice, was the cause of Vanderbilt's downfall at the hands of Michigan. By placing Schultz the great center, behind the line where he used to better advantage, Michigan successfully thwarted every attempt of the Commodores to gain ground either by the forward pass or old tactics. At times the Vanderbilt line was one of the old veritable stone walls and could not be budged for a single yard.

If Michigan continues to show improvement in the two weeks intervening before the Pennsylvania game at Ann Arbor, it will stand an excellent chance of winning. The easterners have not recovered from the game with the Indians, and several players still are nursing injuries received in this conflict. Hollenback, the captain and standby of the Penn team, has not recovered enough from the battering he received from the redmen to even think of playing, while Keinath, the quarter back, is not in shape to play because of injuries received early in the season. The Quakers will meet Lafayette on Saturday, and this will be a hard game for them a week in advance of the Michigan struggle. The players are sure to show effects of this hard schedule, and will not be in the best of condition for the Michigan contest.

Michigan has a comparatively easy game with the Kentucky State eleven, and should pull through the game in good condition, and be in at least as good shape as the Quakers for the great intersectional battle the following Saturday.

Each Played Great Football.

Indiana was shoved further down the ladder by Illinois last Saturday in a great game. The Hoosiers played the best football they knew, but it was not good enough to beat a team the caliber of Illinois. The downstairs played fine football all through the struggle and deserved the verdict. Little Schadek, the Illinois starter back, was the whole show. He loose up as one of the star quarter backs in the west this year.

Purdue showed improvement in winning from De Pauw. The Boilermakers have been coming strong since the Chicago game, and Coach Spears is determined to win the remaining games on the schedule. Purdue will meet Northwestern at Evanston on Saturday. This should be a good game, as the purple coaches have been hard at work rectifying the faults of the players as shown in the Beloit game.

Iowa was given its second jolt of the season last Saturday by Nebraska. The game was hard fought all the way through and the outcome was in doubt until the final whistle blew. With the score 11 to 8 in favor of Nebraska, Iowa tried a field goal, which, if made, would have given the game to the Hawkeyes, but the attempt was a failure and Iowa's chances went glimmering. Nebraska has been playing consistent football all season. It is one of the strongest teams in the middle west.

Games in the East.

In the east the real surprise was the defeat of the Navy by the Indians. The redmen showed up better in all departments of the game, apparently having recovered from the Pennsylvania game of the preceding Saturday, while the Middies did not play the game they did against Harvard the week before.

Princeton was held to a tie by the army, but the Tigers had all the better of the battle, as they worked the oval down to the opponent's five yard line several times, but were unable to score.

Cornell showed improvement in its game with Pennsylvania state, which the Ithacans won. The state eleven is strong this season and has given all the big teams close games, but Cornell's improvement was not as marked as that of Chicago. It will be remembered these elevens are to meet on Marshall field on Nov. 14 in what should be one of the greatest games of the year.

Harvard was given a scare by Brown, the Crimson finally winning, after a hard struggle, in which mostly old football tactics were used.

Yale and Dartmouth had easy times comparatively in disposing of their opponents, Massachusetts Agricultural college and Amherst, respectively.

STAGG STILLS SIREN VOICE

Warns Maroons Western Title Is Still in Danger.

HARD WORK FOR THIS WEEK

Cornell and Wisconsin Games Loom Before Maroon "Steam Roller."

Coach A. Alonzo Stagg of the University of Chicago will guide his football ship of state with a firm hand for the rest of the season. The Maroon director sees danger ahead for his fleet, swift craft, despite Saturday's overwhelming defeat of Minnesota, and every man aboard the vessel must show his seamanship or be cast into chains.

On one side of the proud Maroon ship Coach Stagg sees the Scylla of Cornell, on the other the Charybdis of Wisconsin. As for the Maroon rooters, who are claiming the western championship in advance, the wily sailor considers them the sirens whose sweet voices would lure his men on to the rocks of overconfidence and ruin.

As Coach Stagg really believes the next two games on the Maroon schedule will prove hard fought and dangerous contests, the stren rooters yesterday were unable to budge him an inch from his position. He believes both the Ithacans and the Badgers will show marked improvement over their previous performances when they meet Chicago. He considers both teams stronger than has been brought out in their scores so far this season.

Back to Hard Work.

With the rout of the remaining teams in view Coach Stagg will send his team into another week of record breaking work, beginning this afternoon. There will be a slight letup today, but by tomorrow's session the work will be going at top speed again, with new plays and new combinations keeping the squad occupied until after dark.

The Maroons did not have to show their hand against Minnesota, while the rooters were surprised at the varied attack and the number of new things sprung on the Gophers. Capt. Steffen was keeping about half of his repertory under cover. As a result the offense will be well stocked for the Cornell and Wisconsin battles.

The line problem will be eased up this week when Schott and Eckhart, the injured Maroons, appear for work. Both will be able to get into practice by the middle of the week and they are expected to be in shape for the Cornell game. Sheridan will not participate with the varsity, but his position at left guard to make room for Schott or will be used as an extra back field regular, has not been determined.

Eckhart's return will give Stagg another high class lineman, and it is probable he will place him at left guard at first, since Kelley seems to have shifted to right guard. Falk played a star game at right tackle Saturday, and probably will stay there with the rest of the line intact.

Too Early to Claim Title.

"We must finish our schedule before we claim any titles," said Coach Stagg yesterday. "We have Wisconsin to beat before we can say we have the best team in the west. Wisconsin is a mighty strong team all season, and I still think we will have our hands full Nov. 21, despite the fact that Wisconsin failed to make a brilliant showing on Saturday against Marquette. I expect to improve my team before Nov. 14, too. From what I gather from the reports of the Cornell game, the team seems to be far stronger than indicated by its 10 to 4 victory over Penn State. If it is the case that the Ithacans played good and did themselves credit on Saturday, but we are not going to call ourselves champions yet."

GOPHER SQUAD RETURNS HOME.

Disappointed Minnesota Eleven Will Now Prepare for Contest Against Badgers Next Saturday.

Coach Harry Williams and the Gopher football team left for their northern stronghold last night after a disappointing day of fumbling over their slaughter at Marshall field by the Maroons. The Minnesota players were downhearted over their defeat, but the majority of them had only praise for the Chicago eleven.

The Gophers will begin work at once to prepare for the Minnesota-Wisconsin game next Saturday. They expressed themselves as confident of a victory over the Badgers. The only bright feature of the Hawkeyes' game was the injury to Capt. Overs. The little half back turned his ankle in the Maroon game and may be unable to play next Saturday.

The Gopher rooters also took their leave, many of them poorer in purse and sadder than when they arrived Saturday morning.

SEES HARD GAME FOR PURPLE.

Prof. Gillesby Returns from Lafayette and Says Purdue Team Has Improved Greatly.

Prof. Gillesby, in charge of athletics at Northwestern university, returned to Evanston on Sunday from Lafayette, where he saw the victory of Purdue over the De Pauw team. He said he noticed a marked improvement in Purdue's offensive as well as defensive work in comparison to that shown in the recent contest with Chicago. He also said that they have the advantage over Northwestern in weight, being about five pounds to the man heavier.

With consistent signal practice and a possible scrimmage with the Northwestern academy gridders, who will come to Evanston, the purple may gain enough speed to make up for the disadvantage in weight. It is the general opinion among the students and members of the team that the purple will have an even chance with Purdue when the teams meet next Saturday.

The coaches are much encouraged because Marsh, the star left end of the Northwestern-Beloit game, whose ankle was sprained in practice, is rapidly improving and will be in the game again by Tuesday. Capt. Al. Magner, who has been suffering with two bad ankles, is in his normal condition again. With the exception of Lowe, one of the substitute linemen, the hospital list is now cleared.

HURLING TITLE THE PRIZE

St. Louis Team Will Play the Chicago Men on Next Sunday.

CHAMPIONSHIP IS AT STAKE.

Locals Won This Last Year and Rivals Hope to Regain Honors.

The hurling championship of the United States will be decided next Sunday at Gaelic park, when the St. Louis team will meet the pick of Chicago's hurlers as chosen by Father J. K. Fielding.

Last year the match wasplayed in St. Louis and the Chicagoans won by a good margin, although they were given a hard fight all the way. The locals have improved their game greatly this year, as contests have been played regularly, and the men are in excellent condition.

St. Louis also will be strong, as they have imported several of Ireland's best players and will make a desperate effort to win back the honors they lost last year to the Fielding aggregation.

Father Fielding had his men at Gaelic park for a workout yesterday afternoon and the great clerical athlete put them through a strenuous afternoon's play in place of the football games that were to have been contested. His reverence will not be in the game himself, although he still shows all the skill that won a place for him on the all Ireland team several years ago, but he will do all the coaching. The lineup against St. Louis has not been decided, as the weeding out process is not completed, but the Emicasians, O'Mahoneys, and Shamrocks all will be represented on the champion team.

The crucial football contest of the year will be that between the Emmets and Rangers just preceding the St. Louis-Chicago hurling game. The Rangers at present are leading the Gaelic league, but if the Emmets should put one over on them there will be a three cornered tie for first place, with the O'Connells the third team in the race.

NOW GIRDING LOINS FOR IOWA.

Illinois Football Eleven Stocks Up on Hope Since Victory Over the Hoosier Team.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—Illinois, having disposed of Indiana, looks ahead to Iowa, as the Hawkeyes will come on Saturday. It is believed that when Coach Lindgren, who hoted the Hawkeyes in their game with Nebraska yesterday, returns he will predict an Illinois victory.

Illinois rooters chuckled over Wisconsin's tight squeeze with Marquette, accepting the score as a vindication of the Illini tie with the collegiates early in the season.

Northwestern's game on Nov. 21 seems to loom up as one of the best on the schedule.

FIVE BIG MEETS FOR GYMNASTS.

International Union Will Hold Several Events This Winter Without Seeking Sanction of A. A. U.

The International Gymnastic Union of Chicago will hold five big athletic meets during the coming season. In December a gymnastic competition will be given, while the wrestlers will meet in February. March is to be aside for the indoor track athletics and the fencing will take place in April. To wind up the year an outdoor athletic meet will be held in June.

The union, which was formed last spring to govern the turners and gymasts and fencers, together with other German, Bohemian, and Danish athletes, according to their own ideas, will run the competitions without seeking the sanction of the A. A. U. or any other body.

The organization has the backing of the largest and most powerful turngemeindes in the city and continually is receiving new members. The Scandinavian and Swedish societies are the latest to apply for membership.

HANS WAGNER AN OIL MAGNATE.

Ball Player Gets Notice His West Virginia Investment is a Big Thing.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—"Luck, pure and simple—just plain Dutch luck." So said Hans Wagner, ball player, last night when he was handed a telegram saying the oil well in which he is interested in West Virginia had reached the pay sand and was flooding at a rate which promises to give him a large part of the world's money than he has now. None of his friends here knew of his investment until the message came.

MORDECAI BROWN NOW AN ELK.

Cubs' Star Pitcher Is Given Life Membership in Order—Congratulated by Ex-Gov. Yates.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—Mordecal Brown of the Chicago Cubs was given a certificate of life membership in the Elks late last night. Ex-Gov. Yates, who had delivered a political speech earlier in the evening, was present and congratulated him. Brown will secure a bowling alley here.

Harvard Captain Out for Season.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—The injury to Capt. Burr, of Harvard football fame, is more serious than expected and he probably will be out of the game for the season.

BOWLING CLUBS STRIKE GAIT

Class Beginning to Tell in Local League Contests.

WEAKER FIVES TO THE REAR

Charley Collier Assumes Individual Lead Among Monroe Experts.

Class is beginning to tell in the local bowling leagues with six weeks of averages for the secretaries to figure on and the few weak clubs that held the lead after one or two series have been pushed back into their proper places by the stronger quintets.

In the Chicago league the Breen & Kennedys and Centurys stuck in the two leading places during the week, although they both had hard clubs to dispose of. Many changes took place in the individual standing of the Monroe league, Charley Collier supplanting W. V. Thompson as the league leader, while Phil Wolf went to second, displacing "Deacon" Howley. The team standings remained virtually unchanged.

HARRIMAN SILENCE UP TO HIGH COURT

U. S. Supreme Bench to Decide if Magnate Must Answer Commerce Board.

NOTED LEGAL FIGHT DUE.

Arguments on Rail Company's Right to Speculate Likely to Begin Tomorrow.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—[Special.]—The justices of the United States Supreme court are to be regaled with arguments by noted attorneys this week concerning the famous case wherein E. H. Harriman refused to divulge information concerning stock transactions of the Union Pacific railroad company and the alleged speculations of its president and directors.

Should the case be called on election day, and it now appears that it will fall on that date, such citizens as ex-Senator John C. Spooner, John G. Milburn, Robert S. Lovett, Walker D. Hines, Paul D. Cravath, C. A. Severance, and Frank B. Kellogg, members of counsel for both Mr. Harriman and the government, will lose their chance to vote.

Important Law Points Involved.

Messrs. Severance and Kellogg, the latter known as the administration "trust buster," and assistant to the attorney general, will present the case on behalf of the government, which seeks to compel Mr. Harriman to answer questions put to him during the investigation by the interstate commerce commission into the financial affairs of the Union Pacific during the winter of 1906. The other attorneys mentioned are gathering in Washington to fight for the interests of Mr. Harriman.

Arguments in the case promise an exposition of some fine points which involve an interpretation of an important part of the law under which the interstate commerce commission is operating. The final disposition of the matter, which already has been decided in favor of the government's contention by the Circuit Court of Appeals at New York, will settle some hotly argued views in regard to the power of the interstate commerce commission when it comes to investigating financial operations and internal management of an interstate common carrier.

Say Rail Company Can Speculate.

In this instance it is asserted by Mr. Harriman's counsel that the government has not the right to go into these matters, and that whatever speculative dealings its officers may enter into do not pertain to interstate commerce. They maintain, practically, that a railway corporation organized under the laws of a state, although engaged in interstate commerce, can speculate.

The government counsel will argue that congress has the right to provide against railroad insolvency by requiring regular reports concerning a railway's financial condition and may prevent railway companies from buying stocks.

The interstate commerce commission started an investigation into the control of railways by the Union Pacific, its purchase of stock of various other lines, and the effect of this practice upon its transportation rates. When asked what price had been paid for Illinois Central stock before its sale to the Union Pacific Mr. Harriman declined to answer.

Other Questions Still Unanswered.

He also declined to answer questions as to his previous purchase and sale to himself, as president of the Union Pacific, of stocks of the Chicago and Alton, St. Joseph and Grand Island, New York Central, Lake Shore, and other lines.

Another set of questions was fired at Mr. Harriman concerning the increase of Union Pacific and Southern Pacific dividends and the alleged connivance of Union Pacific officials to keep the raise a secret from the other stockholders until the officials had supplied themselves with stock of their road for speculative purposes.

Mr. Harriman refused to answer the questions and the entire matter was then carried before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New York. Justice Hough of that court decided that Mr. Harriman must answer the questions put to him. Mr. Harriman appealed to the United States Supreme court. He will be required to answer if the decision of the United States Court of Appeals at New York is affirmed.

VESSEL CRASHES INTO BRIDGE.

Abutment of Clark Street Structure Displaced When Struck by Steamship Thomas Cranage.

The steamship Thomas Cranage ran into the south abutment of the Clark street bridge at 5:30 o'clock last evening while being towed down the river. The impact displaced the abutment about four inches broke the Cranage's bow, and tied up traffic. There were only a few persons on the bridge when the accident occurred and no one was injured.

The damage to the abutment was repaired temporarily after a delay of about half an hour and cars by going slowly were able to cross the bridge.

The Cranage, coal laden, was being towed by the tug T. T. Morford. The steamer, although moving slowly, became unmanageable in the swift current and before the tug could swing it around ran into the abutment.

MEMORY OF LUTHER HONORED

Norwegian Churches in Chicago Celebrate Reformation Day.

POLITICS IN SOME PULPITS.

Prof. Zueblin Advocates Better Education for the Working Men.

"Reformation day" was celebrated with festival services yesterday by the Norwegian Lutheran synod churches of Chicago.

The first services were held in each of the following churches at noon: Lake View, St. Paul's, Our Savior, St. John's, St. Mark's, St. Matthew's, and Irving Park. Union services were held in the afternoon in Lake View church, and at night in St. Paul's church.

The festival sermon was delivered by the Rev. William Dallman of Milwaukee, who referred to the boldness of Luther's convictions as an example to be followed by modern thinkers. The Rev. G. A. Gulikson, pastor of Lake View, and the Rev. P. A. Kittelsby, pastor of St. Paul's, delivered addresses in Norwegian.

The occasion was the celebration of the 391st anniversary of the historic day when Martin Luther nailed his proclamations of defiance to the pope on the doors of cathedrals and brought about the establishment of the Lutheran church.

A torchlight parade, preceded by a Salvation army band, marched through several streets of the west side at night, advertising the first of the "health song services" held at First Congregational church.

Importance of Voting Urged.

Refusal of a qualified citizen to vote is a crime, Bishop Fallows declared in a prelude to his sermon in St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal church.

"The pulpits of the land ought to ring out the strongest utterances on the high crime of not voting," the bishop said. "It would be a drastic measure, which doubtless would not carry, to disfranchise the man who had the power to vote and deliberately refused to exercise it. He is a sulker and a coward in the civil ranks of life who does not vote, as the soldier is who hides or shows the white feather in the time of an engagement.

"The American voter as an American sovereign cannot abdicate his responsibility to his city and state and country by refusing to go to the polls on Tuesday next. The will of the people decides the destinies of the nation. That will should ever express the convictions of an honest majority of all the citizens who have the right to cast a ballot and the opportunity of so doing."

Various other clergymen preached on tomorrow's election, and many of them openly advised their hearers to ignore Wayman and Kern and cast their votes for Street for state's attorney.

Makes Plea for Working Men.

"The average workingman must always expect to be a workingman."

This first sentence in John Mitchell's book on labor was quoted by Prof. Charles Zueblin in a lecture on "Education and Industry" delivered in the morning before the Society for Ethical Culture. The lecturer didn't see anything disheartening in Mr. Mitchell's assertion.

"Why not?" he asked. "What other ideal could there be for most people—the average? The ideal hitherto, of course, has been that every workingman was going to be president of the United States, and we have held up that illusory notion before our youth as the lodestar to guide them to their destiny.

For Compulsory Education.

"In the first place, we are going to give each American child an elementary education. Hence, we must have compulsory education as well as compulsory factory laws, uniform throughout the country for every state, even if we have to appeal to the nation to get it, so that no child can escape. And we are going to be inexorable and brutal; we are going to take the child from the widow, her only hope and support, and put him in a school, no matter what happens to her. Of course we will not let anything happen to her. We will take care of her; give her a pension, perhaps; anything rather than that she shall take that member of society and in immature years stunt his whole future growth, and perhaps that of all her subsequent success in her family."

TYPHOID EPIDEMIC AT AN END.

Health Department Says Every Case of Contagious Disease Results from Violation of Law.

In its weekly bulletin, issued yesterday, the health department says the epidemic of typhoid fever at West Pullman and "back of the yards" is at an end.

"The situation which we are now studying especially is that of the Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, and Thirty-fourth wards," says the bulletin. "We think we have found the origin of the most of the trouble in the Thirty-fourth and Twelfth wards.

"About six weeks ago a girl had scarlet fever. She had no doctor. Her mother called it measles and kept her home a few days, but did not report the illness. She has been back in her room at the Farragut school over a month. There are twenty-four cases reported in this district."

The bulletin then draws five conclusions from this situation as follows:

"Every case of contagious disease results from somebody's violation of the law.

"No epidemic situation can be allowed to drift. The policy of laissez faire will not work.

"The mailed hand will cure any epidemic situation in short order.

"The clergy, physicians, and good citizens generally can be depended on when they are stirred into activity.

"So long as the community backs the department of health it can guarantee them against general epidemics."

Body of Man Identified.

The body of a man who died in the Harrison street patrol wagon Saturday was identified yesterday at McNally and Duffy's undertaking rooms as that of David Strauss. Strauss was found lying in a hallway at 206 Clark street. He is not believed to have had a permanent residence.

BUSINESS FOLK IN REUNION AT INSTITUTIONAL CHURCH.

Eloquent Tributes Paid to Mission Which Gave Them Their Start Toward Careers of Success.

In Halsted Street Institutional church, 778 Halsted street, last night nearly 300 business men and women who received their first training in that church gathered for the first time in a reunion. It is planned to hold annual reunions hereafter and some were enthusiastic enough to suggest that they be held semi-annually.

S. A. Kean, who was superintendent of the church twenty-five years ago, told how the first meeting was held in the barroom of a saloon forty years ago. Later a small building was erected, which answered the purpose of a relief station during the fire. The Rev. D. D. Vaughan, pastor of the church, referred to the achievement of the men who had come there from the slum districts and had made a success in the business world. Dr. Vaughan was for nine years a newsboy at State and Madison streets, and he had no sooner made the statement than from several quarters came the reply, "And so was I," at such and such a corner.

A banquet followed the afternoon's program. Among those present were Harry De Camp, secretary of the S. D. Childs company; Charles K. Troy of the First National bank; N. M. Jones, attorney; Chauncey Dunwell of the Dunwell & Ford company, and John Morava, manager of the Chicago branch of the Diamond Match company.

SHEATH GOWNS AT EVANSTON.

Northwestern University Coeds Appear at Halloween Entertainment in Directoire Dresses.

Sheath gowns appeared at a halloween party in Evanston Saturday night and were worn by a few Northwestern university students at an entertainment at Willard hall. The affair was closed with a dance in which the coeds showed great skill in handling their new dresses.

Miss Helen Patton, Miss Ruth McPherrin, and Miss Mary Holton, members of the social committee in charge of the entertainment, refuse to make any predictions as to whether the new style will be perpetuated in Northwestern university circles.

Assert People South of Suburb Ignore All Other "L" Cars.

Through express service for patrons of the Northwestern elevated road living north of Wilson avenue will be sought this week by a committee of thirteen, which will wait on Mayor Busse and Mason B. Starring immediately after the election.

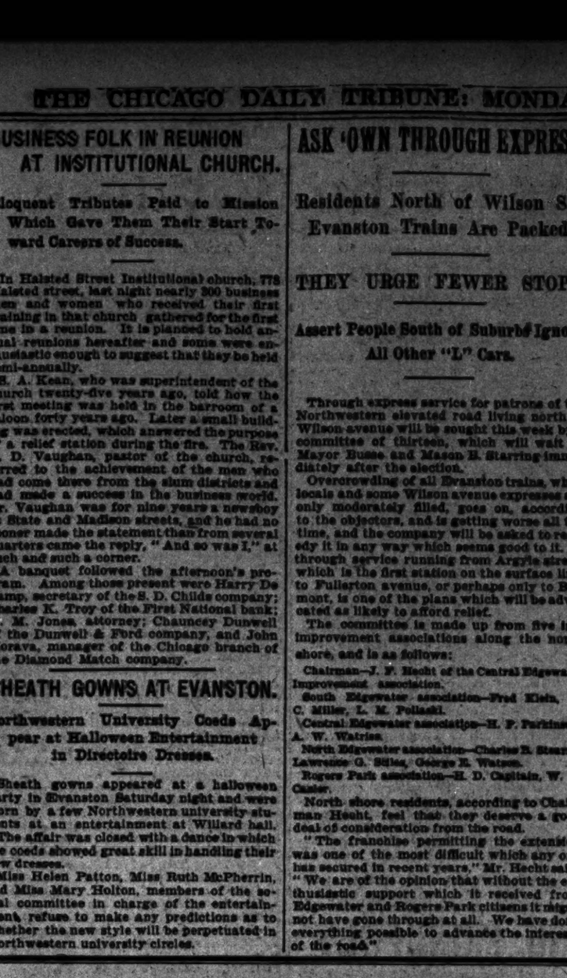
Overcrowding of all Evanston trains, while locals and some Wilson avenue expresses are only moderately filled, goes on, according to the objectors, and is getting worse all the time, and the company will be asked to remedy it in any way which seems good to it. A through service running from Argyle street, which is the first station on the surface line, to Fullerton avenue, or perhaps only to Belmont, is one of the plans which will be advocated as likely to afford relief.

The committee is made up from five improvement associations along the north shore, and is as follows:

Chairman—J. F. Hecht of the Central Edgewater Improvement association.
South Edgewater association—Fred Klein, H. C. Miller, E. M. Pollard.
Central Edgewater association—H. F. Parkinson, A. W. Watrins.
North Edgewater association—Charles B. Stearns, Lawrence G. Stiles, George R. Watson.
Rogers Park association—H. D. Capitain, W. H. Custer.

North shore residents, according to Chairman Hecht, feel that they deserve a good deal of consideration from the road.

"The franchise permitting the extension was one of the most difficult which any one has secured in recent years," Mr. Hecht said. "We are of the opinion that without the enthusiastic support which it received from Edgewater and Rogers Park citizens it might not have gone through at all. We have done everything possible to advance the interests of the road."



Election returns will be gathered by the associated Bell telephone companies all over the United States, and transmitted directly to Chicago by long distance. The Chicago, Cook County and Illinois returns transmitted directly by telephone without loss of time. The service will be complete, accurate and early.

Subscribers, excepting those having party lines, can receive all bulletins and a continuous service for $10. All other subscribers may receive regular bulletins at intervals of ten minutes during the night—for the price of a single call for each bulletin. This service is free to flat-rate subscribers. Nickel subscribers will pay 5c per call. Measured rate subscribers will pay the contract price of their regular calls.

If you want the continuous bulletin service, notify our Contract Agent, 203 Washington street, by telephone before tonight. If you wish ten minute bulletins, call up on election night and ask the operator.

EVERY MUSIC TEACHER NEEDS THIS

Normal Course of Piano Study
By William H. Sherwood

MR. SHERWOOD has put into written form his successful piano method for the benefit of music teachers who need additional training, but who do not find it convenient to attend a conservatory of music in person. The work is given in the form of weekly written lessons, illustrated with photographs, and embracing all the principles of piano playing which Mr. Sherwood learned of those master teachers, Liszt, Kullak, and Deppe, and which he has been so successfully teaching to others for thirty years. Each lesson is accompanied by an examination paper, which thoroughly tests the pupil's mastery of the work. The lessons give Mr. Sherwood's method of teaching both beginners and advanced players; the all-important subjects of technic, touch, tone-production, phrasing, interpretation, as well as the rudiments of music and pedal work. You are shown how to improve your own teaching by adapting these principles to your work. You are asked in the examination papers questions about the problems that confront you in teaching various grades of pupils, and are permitted in turn to ask questions yourself on subjects upon which you would like the advice of a master teacher with the vast experience that Mr. Sherwood has had. Mr. Sherwood's conception of a harmonious training of musical feeling, mind, muscle and every sensibility for expression, so that carefully developed fingers, wrist, arm and body will readily obey the dictates of a cultured intelligence, is put in such form as to assist you to train your pupils musically, artistically, intellectually and physically by the same principles and exercises that Mr. Sherwood uses in his own practice and private teaching.

The complete Normal Course also includes a course in Harmony, Theory and Composition

By Daniel Protheroe,

As accomplished and well-known in his field as Mr. Sherwood is in his.

THIS part of the course includes the Formation of Scales, Musical Notation, Intervals, Chord Combinations, Progressions, Modulations, Transposing, Harmonising of Melodies, Writing of Accompaniments, Composition, Thorough Bass, Counterpoint, Orchestration, etc. This work is given also by means of weekly written lessons with examinations thereon. You are required to do original work, which is carefully corrected. Hundreds of pupils throughout the country have already availed themselves of the opportunities afforded for improvement and advancement by this written work, and now for the first time the benefits are thrown open to residents of the city.

In order to relieve themselves of the care incident to the enrollment of pupils in large numbers and the collection of fees, Mr. Sherwood and Mr. Protheroe have associated themselves with the Siegel-Myers School of Music, which has a splendid business organization, and is prepared to properly care for the large number of pupils that are availing themselves of this opportunity. The price of the course is mindfully reduced, and terms of payment will be made to suit your convenience. Do not call in person until an appointment has been made, but write today for full particulars. Courses on all instruments for beginners. Also course in voice culture.

FROST DAMAGE BIG FACTOR

Wheat Mart Influenced Largely by Advices from Argentina.

WEATHER FAVORS CORN CROP

Clear Skies and Good Roads, However, Fail to Increase Movement.

Mixed reports regarding the extent of damage wrought to the Argentine crop by frost were about all that sustained interest in last week's wheat market. Ante-election last-minute prevailed throughout, plisters moving with extreme caution, although there was enough in the advices from the South American republic to arouse considerable uneasiness in the ranks of the shorts and to infect some tonic into the spirit of boldness among the more confident and courageous bulls. The price range for the week was within the limits of about 2c, final quotations on Saturday representing net gains of ½c for December, ¾@1c for May, and ¾c for July compared to the finals of the preceding week.

Little Concern Shown Abroad.

Sensationally bullish information on the situation in the Argentine was spread with a liberal hand, but much of its effectiveness was lost through the apparent indifference of foreign markets. Some of the messages went so far as to claim that the principal provinces had sustained fully 50 per cent damage, but others limited the actual injury to 5 per cent, which, considering the increased area, brought the total yield down close to the proportions of the previous outturn. Some of the more optimistic investigators figured that the crop would show a good margin over the last yield.

See Reduced Exportable Surplus.

Those who sent the more unfavorable advices calculated that the Argentine exportable surplus this season would fall under 100,000,000 bu, compared to 135,000,000 bu thus far exported from the last yield. The more conservative calculators, however, "see" an exportable surplus well in excess of 100,000,000 bu. Budapest showed an occasional flurry over unpropitious crop conditions in Hungary, and there was some uneasiness over drought in Germany, but the foreign situation as a whole was considered favorable. The week's exports from India and Russia were light, but Australia contributed much more freely than a year ago, with conditions at home highly favorable. The exports from this country were of good volume, but new export business was confined largely to Manitobas and durums.

Domestic Movement Less Bulky.

The week's primary receipts were in excess of those of a year ago, but were considerably smaller than recent runs. On two or three days the totals fell under those of last year. Unfavorable weather conditions were held by many to have been responsible for the reduced movement, but country roads were in fair shape late in the week. The visible supply again showed a big gain, the total now being large enough, per se, bearish argument, to put to rest any doubt as to the ability to meet current requirements easily and conveniently. The general domestic cash situation was moderately strong, although the demand for the better milling grades lacked much of recent urgency, and there was a material let up in the domestic and foreign flour inquiry. The week's output of the breadstuff in the northwest lacked much of former volume, and late in the week there was talk that some of the mills would curtail operations because of a lack of shipping orders.

Recent rains were said to have worked much benefit to the long droughty sections of winter wheat territory, but some of the more important regions expected smaller areas than were given to winter wheat last year. Missouri and other regions west of the Mississippi river noted satisfactory progress on the part of seeded grain, but parts of the Ohio valley, where moisture was insufficient, sent in less optimistic reports.

Corn in Narrow Limits.

Corn values moved within narrow bounds last week, and the week's trade as a whole was slow and devoid of unusual feature. The waiting spirit was quite as pronounced as that in wheat. Week end quotations showed declines of ¼@¾c compared to the finals of the previous week. The demand for the cash article was only fair at best, and late in the period holders were forced to make concessions in order to effect sales.

Cold and generally clear weather over the greater part of the belt formed one of the market pessimists' principal assets in the pit. Conditions were favorable for moving and curing the grain, but farmers showed little disposition to sell freely at the prevailing prices, figuring that the situation warranted stiffer values in the near future. Stocks of grain in the east are said to be much lighter than the trade has been led to believe, and the holders in the west think that the time is not far distant when the east will be compelled to buy liberally in the western markets. The movement to the principal distributing centers fell much under that of last year. Exporters nibbled a little at gulf ports, but actual business worked to Europe was not large. Conditions in the Argentine were said to be good, with prospects of a large crop.

Oats Display Firm Tone.

Firmness was characteristic of the oats market the greater part of the week, but pit trafic was slow from start to finish. Light receipts and continued brisk consumptive demand served the bulls in good stead and injected caution into the veins of the bears. Prices moved within narrow bounds, the finals on Saturday representing net gains of ⅝c for December, ¾c for May, and ⅝c for July. The movement from the country fell well below last year's showings, and charts figured that the big run is over. Bears pointed to the bulkiness of the visible supply, which shows about 2,300,000 bu over that of a year ago at this time.

Irregularity in Provisions.

Irregularity of prices was shown in the provision market, but the general undertone showed soundness. Speculative business was not large, being almost entirely of a professional character, but commission houses were among the buyers of the distant futures on all recessions. The heaviness of hog receipts at principal western packing centers had a depressing influence on the list, as did the shrinkage in the cash demand late in the week. Packing for the week at western centers was 605,000 hogs, the total since March 1 being about 50,000 hogs over that of the corresponding period in 1907. There are many in the trade who think conditions warrant a stronger market in the near future.

Week in Live Stock Trade.

A narrow local consumptive demand for beef products was reflected in the market for native beef steers, and although receipts were materially decreased, lower values had to be accepted for the bulk of the offerings. Eastern shippers took their share of the arrivals, and exporters increased their purchases, but local packers held back, and claimed that coolers were overstocked with beef carcasses for which they could find no outlet. This was the situation at the close and as there were many loads of good to choice beeves left unsold, traders were hoping that receipts this week would be held down to small proportions. Hog trade was exceptionally irregular last week, but the close found the market in much better condition than a week ago, and it was said that a permanent improvement could be looked for. More extensive feeding of new corn is beginning to be reflected in better quality in hogs and traders looked for the culmination of the depressive marketing of under weight hogs, which has characterized the movement the last two months. Live mutton values fluctuated over a wide range, but closed little changed from a week ago, heavy receipts on late days forcing salesmen to cede back previously noted gains. Future values will depend chiefly on the volume of supplies, as local packers have little outside competition to overcome.

SENTIMENT IN WALL STREET REFLECTS POLITICAL TREND.

[NEW YORK TIMES FINANCIAL LEADER.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—[Special.]—On the stock exchange last week movements of prices reflected simply the forces which always are at work upon financial markets on the eve of a presidential election. At such a time many buyers and sellers of securities feel that however clearly preliminary indications as to the outcome seem to support their own desires, the element of uncertainty, nevertheless, is still present, and the prudent course is to reduce holdings.

A matter of a political nature which entered into the week's calculations in Wall street was the changed attitude of a great part of the financial community in regard to Hughes. It seems to be admitted on all sides that there will be pressed for enactment by the legislature this winter numerous bills looking to investigation and regulation of the stock exchange. For some weeks the delusion was cherished below Fulton street that the election of Chanler might avert legislation of this kind, or at least render it in the long run harmless.

Wall Street Turns to Hughes.

Discussion of all this has resulted in a general change of sentiment, and today Hughes may be said to have Wall street's entire allegiance where a month ago quite the contrary was true. Appreciation of this change of heart on the part of so important a class of voters naturally had results in strengthening the stock market, which at the end of the week presented a range of prices little changed from that of the preceding Saturday.

In the business world among the convincing signs of betterment which came to light were the report of increased earnings by railroads, particularly by those roads operating in western territory, and in the industrial field by the statements of the United States Steel corporation of the September quarter's earnings. The Rock Island system, the Omaha and Minneapolis and St. Louis were railroads which reported increased traffic returns.

In the money market during the week there were no special changes. In the absence of any substantial demand for funds by the interior, coupled with little inquiry from other quarters, ease was found to exist. The only question had been whether this ease might not become so great as to result in shipments of gold to Europe. As it happens there is a similar oversupply of money abroad at this time; therefore there is no real reason for additions to the present gold holdings of the great banks from our own supply.

Irregularity on Paris Bourse.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Nov. 1.—Quiet irregularity characterized the general run of price movements last week on the Paris bourse. Foreign funds benefited from hopes of a new Russian issue early next month, while banking shares and high class industrials displayed firmness.

London Ponders Election.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The American presidential election occupied much more attention on the stock exchange last week than the near eastern question. The latter, although still exercising a deadening influence on continental bourses, is generally believed to have lost its dangerous characteristics. Americans, with prices generally up to New York parity, were conspicuously the strong feature of the week.

SAFE INVESTMENTS.

During the past twenty-six years the officers and directors of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, 204 Dearborn st., Chicago, selected and purchased after careful investigations over eight hundred and fifty million dollars of bonds, which have been sold to a constantly growing list of conservative clients. In buying bonds of this institution, the investor secures the benefit of the extensive experience and trained judgment gained through the selection of this large amount of safe investments.

MARKETS INDICATE TAFT WINS

Prices Advance as the Campaign Narrows Down to an End.

SLUMP IF BRYAN TRIUMPHS.

But Financiers Regard Democratic Success Improbable.

Market quotations throughout the week indicated general belief in the success of the republican candidate. This has been the fixed opinion of the market makers during the last two months. They have held it certain that business interests and wage-earners would see their own and the public welfare promoted by the election of Mr. Taft through a feeling of confidence that would insure the continued revival in business. Prices have accordingly advanced until they are in many instances above last year. In the trading in the last few days there has been some evening up of accounts by those who did not feel assured of the outcome.

In view of the present level of quotations there may be easily difference of opinion as to the course of the market after election, even should it go as is now generally predicated. Since the market discounts good news and prospectively good events it is a question to what extent the election of Mr. Taft may have been discounted.

Bond Market Outlook.

It is certain that the bond houses of the country are anticipating a big market in any event. The election of Taft, they think, will mean a hurrah spirit on the part of investors which will mean better prices. In the event Bryan is elected, business will be dull and money cheap, and consequently investment will be sought in bonds.

There is the foreign investor to be considered in this connection. While business relations are close and international confidences are exchanged, the foreigner it is expected would view with alarm the election of Mr. Bryan. The consequent selling of securities would have a temporary effect, at least, on prices.

The domestic business situation shows continued improvement. Idle cars are disappearing, the crop outlook is favorable for good prices, the steel industry is picking up, and everywhere there is a better feeling. If quotations for United States Steel shares furnish any guide to the opinion of those in the management of that corporation, nothing but hopefulness is entertained.

Money Rules Easy.

The money market rules easy and is expected to continue so. The bank statement indicates clearly the strength of the New York associated institutions. They now have an excess reserve of $25,875,375, against a deficit one year ago of $3,550,625, and a surplus two years ago of $3,040,775. The item of capital and surplus shows a decrease compared with last year, owing to the number of insolvencies.

Chicago Securities.

In the Chicago market the activity continued in Chicago Railways issues. There is a great deal of investment buying. A. B. Booth & Co.'s preferred stock does not show any improvement. There is nothing to indicate that the assets will be equal to the indebtedness. The only thing ahead for the stockholders appears to be a reorganization, if that can be effected. This, however, would mean the elimination of the Booth interests from control of the corporation. The local bank creditors feel harshly toward those who now own the majority of stock in the company. It is doubtful whether the banks will extend any further credit unless there be a complete reorganization and entirely new management.

Local Bank Shares.

The local bank stock market reflects further improvement in sentiment toward bank shares. Prices for the stock of a number of institutions are gradually working higher. Following are quotations:

Trade in Wholesale Lines.

Stimulated by more seasonable weather, business in dry goods reached most satisfactory proportions last week. Distributions of all lines of cold weather merchandise, blankets, underwear, hosiery, knit goods, and dress goods were more adequate, and there was greater activity in the markets for furniture, carpets, jewelry, and artwares. Novelties appropriate to holiday trade met with an active inquiry and sold much more freely than at this time a year ago. All changes noted in values were favorable to the holders and the general situation of the markets displayed so much firmness that many merchants who have been extremely conservative in making purchases operated on a larger scale, anticipating future wants in a liberal manner.

More extensive employment of machinery and labor in iron, wood, and electric working was reflected in manufacturing operations. Railroads were in the markets for more liberal supplies, and, although their purchases were confined to immediate needs, orders reached a gratifying aggregate. Conservative estimates on the tonnage of heavy structural business pending placed it at 150,000 tons. Steady export trade continued, a feature being the heavy sales of wire products to Canada. Contracts in pig iron and rails were of moderate tonnage, but deliveries were larger than a month ago, and values showed more stability.

Winter weather in the northwest stimulated the demand for bituminous coal, but anthracite showed little improvement, although dealers generally were disposed to accumulate stocks in expectations of a broader inquiry from consumers. Prices for bituminous coal showed more strength, but anthracite values were weakly held, and some price cutting was reported.

November begins in all our Apparel Sections with two-fold advantage to every woman intending Winter purchases—the broadest range of newest styles and prices will afford unequaled opportunities for economy.

Winter Coats: Splendid Line of New Models

CONVINCING INSTANCES OF THIS STORE'S POWER TO PRODUCE THE GREATEST STYLE AND QUALITY VALUE.

Women desiring one Coat suitable for different occasions should consider the unusual merits of these garments. Special features have been introduced to give them this adaptability for street, afternoon or evening wear—linings in beautiful contrasting colors, also touches of the same colors in the trimmings on collar and cuffs, or the use of attractive novelty buttons. The careful thought given to the selection of models suitable for many different figures make it possible for practically all women to be correctly and becomingly fitted in these Coats. Sixth Floor.

The illustrations represent the splendid style-features of the special values described below.

Women's Coats—an unusually effective model made of broadcloth, with crush collar and cuffs of novelty velvets or satin, in black, white, taupe, blue, amethyst, peacock, green and red; $40.00.

Women's Coats of chiffon broadcloth, Empire style, with satin revers and collar, Persian vest effect, lined with either contrasting or self effects; $37.50.

Women's Coats in another very attractive model, with effective trimming of satin and braids, cut on modified Empire lines, shown in black and the leading shades; $30.00.

Women's Coats—a practical model priced exceptionally low, made of mixed tweeds in a variety of the season's colors, lined throughout with satin of the finest quality, $25.

Many excellent values may be found in less expensive models in the Semi-Fitted or Loose Coats—with braid or satin trimmings, satin lined throughout; $16.50, $18.50, $20, $22.50 upwards.

Women's New Interlined Tailored Suits

Women who desire a conservative style—something a little less extreme than many of the models shown earlier in the season—should be especially interested in this announcement. The assortment of splendid new interlined models shows many unusually noteworthy modifications—fewer buttons, less braid, smaller revers or a lower collar. The coats are well lined and interlined throughout. They are intended for cold weather wear, the fabrics being warmer and slightly heavier than in many of the earlier models. Sixth Floor.

The five models shown in the illustration represent the effectiveness of these Suits. The low prices are worthy of special mention.

Women's Tailored Suits in fine broadcloth—one of the latest models, with interlined coat, showing the new pointed effect around the bottom, velvet buttons and silk loops for buttonholes being the only trimmings; gored skirt with the new high girdle, in taupe, amethyst, blue, catawba and green; $40.00.

Women's Tailored Suits—another new model that will be greatly favored by women desiring very plain Tailored Suits, made of the popular wide wale diagonal cheviots, interlined coat, in blue and green mixtures and plain grays; $37.50.

Women's Tailored Suits made of fine cheviot, with interlined coats cut in rather long, semi-fitted style, with rounded corners and irregular pointed sides, attractively trimmed with Hercules and soutache braid, full gored skirt having front gore with inset of fan plaits, in black and blue only; $45.00.

Women's Satin Costumes: Special Prices.

Satin is fashion's favorite fabric in costumes for all occasions. Its glossy, lustrous surface lends itself readily to the many exquisite effects prescribed by the season's styles. This is especially so in the coloring for in no fabric do the new shades—smoke, taupe, catawba, Copenhagen—show their full richness as in satin.

The illustrations represent the general style-effect of the two Costumes mentioned. The moderate prices, considering the splendid worth of the garments, merit the attention of every woman intending the purchase of a costume.
